This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

The ORIGIN, OBJECTS and POWERS of the Committee of Safety may be sufficiently understood by the following historical statements:

In May (10,) 1774, the General Assembly of New Hampshire met at Portsmouth under the authority of JOHN WENTWOTRH, who was commissioned as Governor of the Province, by his Majesty, George the III, of England, in 1767. During this session. notwithstanding a strong remonstrance by the Governor, the House of Representatives—in sympathy with the people generally throughout the colonies—appointed a Committee of Correspondence for the purpose of interchanging important information with Committees in other colonies appointed or to be appointed for similar duties. The policy of the Governor was in favor of the crown; but the Representatives, jealous of their liberties, thwarted his measures. By letters sent to all the towns in New Hampshire, a Convention was called, which met in Exeter, July 21, 1774, composed of eighty-five delegates, who appointed NATHANIEL FOLSOM and JOHN SULLIVAN to attend the Congress which was to meet at Philadelphia in September following. A second Convention of deputies met in Exeter, January 25, 1775; a third in April 21, 1775, two days after the battle of Lexington.

On the 17th May, 1775, still another Convention met at Exeter, numbering one hundred and fifty-one delegates, from all or nearly all the towns in the Province; and, animated with one spirit, adopted decisive measures in defence of their liberties and rights. They styled themselves the FIRST PROVINCIAL CONGRESS of New Hampshire. Matthew Thornton, Esq., was chosen President, Ebenezer Thompson, Secretary, and the Convention was opened with prayer by the Rev. Josiah Stearns, of Epping. This Congress continued in session till September 2d, when they adjourned to October 31st; and then continued until November 16, when the time expired for which they were elected. In the mean time, Governor Wentworth, attempting in vain to control the action of the Representatives, had withdrawn, first to the Fort in Portsmouth harbor; and then to the Isle of Shoals. In September, 1775, he issued a Proclamation, adjourning the Assembly to April next. "This was the last act of his administration, and the last time he set his foot in the Province."

By this first First Provincial Congress a COMMITTEE OF SAFETY was appointed on the 19th of May consisting of Hon. Matthew Thornton, Josiah Bartlett, William Whipple, Nathaniel Folsom, and Ebenezer Thompson, Esqrs. On Saturday, May 20th, the Congress adopted the following Preamble and Resolutions:

"Whereas, by the late acts of the British Parliament and conduct of the Ministers in pursuance thereof, it appears very evident that a plan is laid and now pursuing to subjugate this and the other American Colonies to the most abject slavery; and the late hostilities committed by the British Troops in our sister Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, leaves us no doubt in determining that no other way is left us to preserve our most darling Rights and inestimable Privileges, but by immediately defending them with arms: Reduced therefore by this most terrible necessity, this Convention, after the most solemn deliberation thereon, have

1. Resolved, That it is necessary to raise immediately two thousand effective men in this Province, including officers and those of this Province already in the service, and that the time from their inlistment continue to the last day of December, unless the Committee of Safety should judge it proper that a part or the whole be discharged sooner.

2. That every member pledge his honor and estate in the name of his constituents to pay their proportion of maintaining and paying the officers and soldiers of the above number while in their service.

3. That application be made immediately to the Continental Congress for their advice and assistance respecting means and ways to put the above plan into execution."

On the 26th of May the Provincial Congress voted the following instructions to the Committee of Safety:

"That the Committee of Safety be empowered and directed in the recess of the Congress, to take under their consideration all matters in which the welfare of the Province, in the security of their Rights, shall be concerned, except the appointment of the Field officers; and take the utmost care that the public sustain no damage, and that they act in the following manner.

1. That they see to it, that whatever plans have been determined upon by Congress, to be immediately carried into execution, which have not been entrusted to the management of any particular persons or Committee, shall be executed by such persons and in such ways as the Committee shall judge best.

2d. If any exigence not provided for by the Congress requires immediate attention, such as marching troops raised to expel an invasion in any part, or directing the motions of the militia within the Province, or without the Province with their own consent, for the same purpose; or make use of any special advantage for securing military stores, or securing any important post, or preventing our enemies from securing advantageous posts, or from obtaining military stores or provisions; they shall immediately take the most prudent and effectual methods to accomplish the above and similar purposes.

3d. That they be and hereby are impowered and directed to apply to the Committee of Supplies for the necessary stores, provisions, &c., for the effectual carrying the aforesaid Instructions into execution."

The Committee of Safety thus constituted and instructed, was continued in power, under the first Constitution, which was adopted January 6, 1776, until the close of the Revolutionary war, or to the 29th of May, 1784. During all this period it was in reality, the Executive Power of the government in relation to the conduct of the war, and hence was familiarly styled the "little Congress." Hon. Meshech Weare, who became a member of this Committee July 6, 1775, was chosen President of it Jan. 20, 1776, and annually, afterwards, till the Committee was dissolved. At the same time he was President of the COUNCIL of the State, that is, the chief Executive officer, from the adoption of the "temporary Constitution" January 6, 1776, till the new Constitution went into effect in June, 1784, when he was chosen President of the State of New Hampshire.*

The following are the names of the Committee of Safety, their residence, terms of service, and, so far as can be ascertained, their death and age.†

For means to publish these Records of the Committee of Safety, completing the 7th volume of its Collections, the New Hampshire Historical Society is greatly indebted to the liberality of the Legislature of the State. In answer to a Memorial of the Socicty, presented by Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, John M. Shirley and Samuel D. Bell, in June 1861, an appropriation was made of three hundred dollars " to the New Hampshire Historical Society, to aid in preserving the Manuscript Records and letters relating to Colonial history of New Hampshire ; and in publishing such part of the same as said Society shall judge expedient."

Grateful for the liberal aid thus afforded, the Publishing Committee proceeded, as soon as practicable, to examine the Colonial Records, and to decide what portion should first be published. They were unanimous in the opinion that no part of our Records could be more interesting, at this juncture of our National affairs, than that embraced in the transition period from Colonial dependence on the British Crown, to the establishment of an independent State government : and as the Records of the COMMITTEE OF SAFETY, in that period, though often referred to, had never been published and were full of interesting details, in relation to the conduct of the war for Independence, the Committee were agreed, that the State appropriation for the Historical Society should be devoted to the publication of these Records.

In printing the Records the Committee have judged proper to follow the original copy as nearly as possible, in orthography, the use of Capitals, in abbreviations, and in the writing of names.

An Index of the principal matters of business transacted each year by the Committee of Safety, is prefixed ; and also a complete alphabetical list of Names of persons mentioned in the Record—which latter has been a work of much labor to arrange and complete.

The volume is most respectfully submitted to the judgment and patronage of the Honorable Legislature of the State, and to the people of New Hampshire, whose early Records are alike honorable to themselves and their fathers.

This Committee, taking into Consideration the necessity of the Regiments of Minute men being as speedily raised as possible, hav^{e} reviewed the Votes of Congress relative thereto & found a Vote for the Soldiers that enlist in the Minute Service to "continue till further Orders of the Congress," which Vote must have been a Mistake of the Scribe, or passed over by the Congress thro' the hurry and Multiplicity of the Business they were engaged in when that passed, as it is very evident that the Designs of Congress was to follow the Directions of the Continental Congress.

Therefore it is now resolved by this Committee that the said Minute men be enlisted for the Term of four Months, & that at the End of Said Four Months the Officers proceed to enlist their Companies again in the same Manner as at first. And it is earnestly recommended to the Person who shall be appointed to Enlist Minute men to Use their utmost Endeavors to fill up the Companies as soon as possible; and to the Soldiers at this important Crisis, when our all is at Stake, to engage in the Service, and as they will be relieved in four months, the Duty will be nearly equal among all the Militia. The President wrote the following letter :—

Exeter, Feb'y 10th, 1781.

To his Excel^{y} Pred^{t} Huntington—

Sir: I have received your letter of the 9th, 13th ult^{o}, with several resolves of Congress inclosed. when the General Court convenes (which will be on the second Wednesday on next month,) the same will be laid before them, and every Nerve will, without doubt, be exerted to comply with the requisitions as far as this State is able. It appears to me that the situation of our finances is such at present, that we can by no means fully satisfy the Demands upon us. Our funds have already been exhausted in a manner of which Congress may not be altogether apprized. To set matters respecting this State in a clearer point of light, I shall mention several things, that at present occur to my mind.

Money has never been so plenty here as in the Commercial States, and of late has been scarcer than at any other time since the commencement of the War, insomuch that we have not been able to issue any more than 75,000 Dollars of the new Emission, which sum has been far inadequate to demands for supporting the War.

Our distance from the Army is such that the driving the Cattle & Horses, transporting Rum, Powder, &c., has proved very expensive indeed. The quantity of Beef required of this State last year was 1,120,000 lb. of which there has been sent forward 1,021,120 lb. (some has been used within the State, and some now remains on hand salted.) The Horses were likewise procured & sent forward agreeably to requisition. Our punctuality in supplying with nearly what has been required, has necessarily occasioned the cost of driving, &c., to be proportionably large.

I have not before me the aggregate of the Costs for driving and transporting, but know the Sum must be very great—which money has been paid to M^{r} Emery, the Assistant Dep^{y} Q^{r} Master in this State. As we have had neither Forage Masters nor Continental Stables within this State, a heavy Charge has accrued on that account, which has hitherto been borne by the State.

A few days since 25,000 Dollars of the new Emission was sent by this State to be exchanged for Specie, to be paid the troops of the New Hampshire line at Camp, in such manner as his Excellency, the Commander in Chief shall direct; or, in case the Exchange cannot be effected, then it was ordered that the said Bills be carried to the Army instead of the Specie.

Large Sums have been advanced by this State to forward on their six months & three months men to Camp. We have had to pay for the Ship Hampden, &c., lost in the Penobscot Expedition, and other matters of consequence, too many to be here enumerated.

As it was not in the power of the State to furnish money from the Treasury to forward the Beef Cattle & Horses, pay for transportation, &c, They were necessitated to order out of the hands of the Loan Officer the 4|10th of the new Bills lately issued for that purpose, being the part assigned for the use of the Continent.

We are now deeply in Arrears—not a single pay Roll of our Soldiers for the last Campaign discharged, the money due to the Officers & Soldiers of the New Hampshire Line for Depreciation & other ways, (together with many other matters,) remains unpaid, for which there are pressing Demands that cannot at present be satisfied. Add to this the refractory spirit prevailing in the western part of the State, which clogs the wheels of Government, deprives us of a considerable Sum of the Taxes, which we exceedingly want, & involves the lower part of the State to make good the deficiency. Some of them, I understand, for their Justification plead the benefit of the Resolution of Congress of the 24th of Septr, 1779, which they say directs this State not to exercise Jurisdiction over them. This detail of difficulties has an unpromising aspect. I presume it would perplex a State much more Opulent than this to extricate itself from Similar embarrassments. I think it my duty to acquaint you with these matters, that Congress may be apprized of our circumstances, & from thence judge what assistance may be expected from us. I am, &c.

FACTS

RELATING TO THE EARLY

HISTORY OF CHESTER, N. H.,

FROM THE SETTLEMENT IN 1720, UNTIL THE FORMATION OF THE STATE CONSTITUTION IN THE YEAR 1784.

COLLECTED BY CHARLES BELL.

MDCCCLI.

NOTE—By the Editor.

Dr. Charles Bell, the author of the following History of Chester,—his native Town—died in Concord, N. H., of pulmonary consumption, February 29, 1856, aged 22½ years. On the Sabbath after his decease, the Rev. Dr. Bouton, in a funeral discourse, thus spake of him:

"Dr. Charles Bell, son of the late Hon. Samuel Bell, of Chester, dying at the early age of 22½ years, possessed qualities of mind and heart which rendered him a fit model for young men just entering on the stage of social and public life. Naturally of a serene, amiable and obliging temper, he sought to promote the happiness of all who were about him. His mind, of a high order, was improved by study from early childhood. His acquisitions in general knowledge, in literature and science, and more especially in the studies of his profession, distinguished him among the young men of his age, and gave large promise of usefulness, and success in the professional career which he had auspiciously begun.

Though of genial social qualities, gifted in conversation, he yet wasted no time in amusements and festivities which could neither improve his mind nor his heart; rather he looked on such things as unworthy of a being pressed with responsibilities and acting for immortality. Doct. Bell possessed a large religious reverence—respect for all things sacred—for the word of God, the worship of his house, the Sabbath and institutions of religion: on these subjects no levity ever marked his conversation or deportment. At an early age, while a member of Brown University, in Providence, R. I., he was personally the subject of these spiritual influences and exercises that are usual antecedents of a new life; and ever after he seemed to live in the fear and love of God, and to be governed by the principles and precepts of Christianity.

But 'death loves a shining mark!' and it early marked him for its victim! 'The days of his youth were shortened.' That pale, serene, thoughtful, intelligent face we shall see no more! Our hopes of his rising and permanent distinction are blasted! yet he lived not in vain. Subject to pulmonary disease, his death was sudden. His mortal remains were conveyed to his native Town, to be interred among his honored kindred and friends. His spirit, we trust, is associated with 'the spirits of the just made perfect;' while his example lives—worthy of the imitation of all the youth who knew him, or to whom his name and virtues shall become known."

It is a striking proof of the mental activity, capacity and good judgment of the author, that the materials for this History were collected, arranged and composed by him, when he was only eighteen years of age. Yet the history will be found accurate and reliable. It has been submitted to the mature judgment and received the approval of the Hon. SAMUEL D. BELL, of Manchester, N. H., by whose liberality the work is now published.

Concord, June, 1863.

FACTS RELATING TO CHESTER.

1719. In the summer of the year 1719, a Society was formed, principally by inhabitants of Hampton, Haverhill, Newbury and Portsmouth, "for settling the Chestnutt Country," of which the first meeting recorded, and probably the first holden, was in the open forest, within the limits of the present town of Chester, and most likely on Walnut Hill. This meeting was on the 15th of October of the same year.

A petition had already been preferred to the government (Sept. 24th,) by Clement Hughes, praying for the grant of a township, and stating that "sundry persons from the Province of Massachusetts Bay" were about to petition for the same land. Mr. Hughes and his company demanded the preference, "having been at a vast expense of blood and treasure to maintain the same against the enemy." This was the usual reason given why preference should be shown to any particular company. It is very unlikely that any "blood" or "treasure" was expended, at that time, on account of the tract. This petition was not granted, as it did not include the Governor and his Council among the Proprietors. At this meeting it was decided that the Society should not exceed ninety individuals, and this number being then incomplete, such persons were to be admitted as should be thought proper by a committee of seven, chosen each year to assume the management of all the Society's affairs, to call meetings as often as should be thought necessary, and "to act in all other matters that they should think proper for the good of the whole Society."

Ichabod Robie, Jacob Stanyan, Caleb Towle, Joseph Tilton and Michael Whidden, all of Hampton, were chosen to lay out the home lots of 20 acres each, in which all privileges of streams were reserved for the use of the Society. Thomas Leavitt and two others, whose names are unknown, were placed on the land to maintain possession whilst a grant could be obtained.

The second meeting of the Society was holden at Hampton, Dec. 20th.

The difficulties which preceded Lovewell's war had just begun, and at the above meeting it was provided that, in case of a war, before the three years, to which time they proposed to limit the settlement, should expire, the same length of time should be allowed after the conclusion of a peace. The home-lots having been laid out, the Proprietors, to the number of eighty eight, drew their lots respectively, and not long after, the number having been increased, contrary to their first intention, to 127, the remainder drew.

1720. In the following March the Society voted to withdraw the first petition, then pending, and "when there should be a convenient season," to prefer another. This second petition was also drawn up by Clement Hughes, and presented the 24th of May following; it was kept suspended until Aug. 26th, when a grant was made "provided that they did not infringe on, or interfere with, any former grant, possessions, or properties," and a committee of Proprietors appointed to procure the land laid out. This grant conveyed a tract of country comprising 100 sq. miles to the Society.

In return for this favor they voted to present his Excellency, the Governor, with a farm of 500 acres, which was laid out "as near the centre of the town as possible without incommoding their own house lots." Gov. Shute's farm began, at its southern limit, near the house of Elijah Hall, and extended on that road, then known as "Penacook path," as far as where Jacob Chase lives, then it spread towards the Northeast nearly as far as Raymond line.

It does not appear with certainty whether any Indian title was ever possessed by the Society, but it is probable that there was not, or some record would remain of the purchase; among the accounts, however, presented by Mr. Hughes, who acted in the capacity of their Secretary, is charged five shillings "for a copy of an Indian deed."

As a fence had been built, in the first instance, round the Southern part of the tract, but little difficulty was experienced from trespassers; there were, however, certain "Haverhill people" who were troublesome during the first year of the grant, and Proprietors were hired to "go and oppose them." Several lawsuits grew out of this opposition. Perhaps these were the same individuals who troubled the Londonderry people this same year; they claimed the lands of Nutfield by virtue of an Indian deed of about twenty years standing, from one John, an obscure sachem.

A path had been made from Haverhill, and also from Kingston, at the time the home lots were laid out, and in March, (1720,) it was voted that the former should be made passable for carts at the expense of the Haverhill proprietors. This path passed over Walnut Hill very nearly where the road now goes, and so down into Hall's Village. At the same time the Society voted that the bridge over Exeter river on the Kingston road, should be made passable for carts.

Immediately after the grant (in August, 1720,) of the township, (thenceforth known as Cheshire,) the settlement was commenced by 24 individuals, mostly from Hampton and Haverhill. The first settlement was on Walnut Hill and in Hall's Village. These settlers were, by vote of the Society, and to encourage further emigration, allowed ten shillings each, annually, for the first three years, The names of these 24 are given, with such other particulars as I have been able to gather in relation to them.

They built, at first, loghouses on their respective lots, and it was not until 1732 that a frame house was put up. This was erected by Capt. Samuel Ingalls, and was standing on the spot where he built it, until within a few years. It was occupied by Thomas Niles, and stood where Humphrey Niles now lives. The frame was of hewn white oak, and in a good state of preservation in 1845. The dimensions of the house were about 25 by 40 feet; so that it was called "the great house," for many years after its erection.

Soon afterwards some of the others followed the example, and built framed houses, several of which are now standing.

1721. At a meeting of the proprietors, holden at Hampton, in January of the following year, the first mill privileges, together with ten acres of land on each side of the stream, were granted to Col. Packer, Col. Weare, Caleb Towle and Samuel Ingalls. These privileges were designated as "the upper and lower falls on the great brook." The conditions of the grant were, that they should erect a saw mill or mills at the upper falls, and have the same in condition to cut boards within twelve months, to saw what logs the proprietors would need for their buildings at halves, and to furnish boards to any person desiring them, at the rate of thirty shillings a thousand, delivered at the mill. Thirty shillings of the currency at that time is about two dollars of our money.

This saw mill was built on the spot where the Hazelton saw mill now stands.

The grantees were to give a bond of £50 to the committee that they would perform the conditions of the grant, and in case of the refusal of any one of them to do this, his share was to be offered to some other individual.

The settlement being now fairly commenced, the expediency of establishing a church and a school began to be considered, and it was resolved that as soon as thirty free-holders should be settled, a minister of the gospel should be maintained; as soon as fifty families should be settled, there should be a meeting house built by the whole proprietary. A few days afterwards, it was voted that "whereas the number of proprietors was considerable," "and no provision was yet made for a schoolmaster," the next proprietor who should forfeit his lot, according to the rules of the Society, by not paying his share of the common expenses, it should be appropriated for a school. This resolve appears to have been for some time neglected, and indeed no house was erected for this purpose for more than twenty years from this date.

A vote was also passed to lay out 100 acres of additional land to each full proprietor, which was not carried into effect, and the following year it was voted that they should contain 200 acres. They were not laid out, however, until 1728, when the first half of the division was completed and called "The Old Hundreds." These lots included almost all of the present town of Raymond.

At this time the difficulties with the Indians began to increase, and a war commenced, which induced seven of the twenty-four families of settlers to return to the older towns for safety. The following are their names: Amos Cass, George Pierce, William Daniel, Ephraim Guile, Robert Ford, Rev. Mr. Simms, Nathan Webster. But one person joined the settlement in 1722 and 1723; this was Reuben Sanborn, of Hampton.

1722. The charter of the town being now prepared, it was signed, together with three others, on the 8th of May of the ensuing year, and was the last official act performed by Gov. Shute in New Hampshire.

This charter was given in the name of King George of Great Britain, France and Ireland, defender of the Faith, &c., and granted (with the reservation "as far as in us lies,") a tract, differing considerably in shape and size from the former grant, and containing over 120 square miles. The name conferred by the charter was CHESTER.

1723. The first meeting under this charter was holden March 28, 1723, when after choosing town-officers, consisting of a clerk, three selectmen, three lot-layers, and a constable to collect the rates, the proprietors voted that additional lots of 50 acres each, should be laid out of the common lands. This was done three years afterwards, all meadow land of one acre or more being reserved. The additional lots were laid out principally near the home-lots.

The selectmen were directed to make application to the next Court of Quarter Sessions to have a highway to Kingston. The Selectmen were empowered to eject all trespassers on the land included by the charter, until December, when a committee was chosen expressly for this purpose.

Those proprietors who were in debt were now warned that, unless their full proportions were paid by the 15th of June, their rights would be forfeited.

1724. The first appearance of the hostile Indians in New Hampshire was at Dover, in the spring of this year, where they killed one individual, and took three prisoners. But little injury was experienced from them until the next spring, when they appeared at Oyster River, at Kingston, and on Tuesday, the 2d of June, at Chester, where five of them took prisoners Lieut. Thomas Smith and John Carr, as they were out hunting deer, and carried them about thirty miles to the northward. There they halted—bound their prisoners, and lay down to sleep; the prisoners escaped in the night, and after three days arrived safe at a garrison in Londonderry.

Smith was one of the first settlers, and lived in a house which stood where Capt. Pickett lived. Carr was only about 15 years old at the time of his capture. His home was then, and for many years afterwards, in a log house which stood on the brow of the hill back of the house where John Hall lives. He died Oct. 22, 1783, at the age of 73.

It is said that they were surprised while watching a deer from a large flat rock, lately blasted out, which was on the lane afterwards laid out for a highway, and known as "the Haverhill road;" it is now untravelled, and leads from Josiah Morse's to the Halls' village road. The rock was on the west side of the road, about 80 rods from Morse's house. The Indians never did much mischief in Chester after this.

On the last of March, a meeting of the Society was holden in Chester, at the house of Capt. Samuel Ingalls, and complaints being made that many trees were unlawfully taken from the undivided lands, a committee was appointed to inspect all the timber of the town, and to prosecute any trespassers.

1725. On the 25th of March of the next year, it was voted, (on account probably of the capture of Smith and Carr in 1724,) to appropriate the sum of £20, "to hire two souldiers to guard them four months next ensueing." Where these "souldiers" were stationed, is uncertain. They might have been at Smith's house, where Capt. Pickett lived, or more probably at a garrison which stood on the spot where Cowdry's hut is, and which was the principal garrison in those times.

1726. In December an end was put to the Indian war by a treaty which was ratified the next spring. The news of this peace arriving in Great Britain induced many people to emigrate, and numerous companies from the northern part of Ireland took up their residence in and about Londonderry, which had been settled by previous emigrations from the same vicinity; among these were several families who came to Chester. These emigrants afterwards formed the Presbyterian church in Chester.

There was a mutual dislike between the Irish settlers and the "Yankees." No intermarriage took place between the two parties for many years, and at last, when it did occur, it was deprecated by all as an untoward event. The first mention of "the poor of the town" occurs this year, and the money forfeited by the unlawful cutting of the proprietor's wood was appropriated to their support. This fine was 40 shillings for every tree.

1727. All the grass growing on the meadows had been esteemed common property, and a regulation was made this year, that if any one should cut his proportion before the last day of July, he should be made to pay to the Selectmen 20 shillings for every day he should so offend, to be appropriated to the support of the poor. The reason of this regulation was, perhaps, to allow the seeds to ripen and fall off before the grass was cut.

1728. The next year the meadows were laid out, in small parcels, to the proprietors. The three-camp-meadow was laid out into twelve rights.

This year the question was agitated whether a meeting house should not be built, and it was decided (by universal consent at least,) that there should be, and at a meeting held Nov. 12th, it was voted that "the stateing y^{e} place for y^{e} meeting house" be left in consideration until the March meeting. According to traditionary accounts, there was considerable debate whether to build it in Hall's village or at the centre, where it now stands. The minister's lot was at the centre, but the graveyard was in Hall's village.

1729. Nothing further was done on this subject until the following March, when it was decided that "y^{e} place called y^{e} centre" should be the place for the meeting house.

At a meeting Oct. 7th, after voting to pay Mr. John Tucke, who had been preaching in Chester, "30 shillings per Sabbath for fourteen Sabbaths last past," Capt. Samuel Ingalls and Ensign Jacob Sargent were appointed a committee "to look out for a suitable orthodox good man," in view of his settlement at Chester. It was voted also that the meeting house should be "fifty foot in length, and thirty-five foot wide, and twenty foot post," "to be furnished completely, both inside and outside, to y^{e} turning of y^{e} key, and set upon the place appointed and before voted." In June of the next year, however, the width of the future meeting house was increased by vote to 38 feet. Dr. Edmund Tappan, of Hampton, Sam^{l} Ingalls and Nathan^{l} Healey, of Chester were appointed a committee to agree with the carpenters about its erection, and forty shillings were assessed on each full proprietor towards its completion. It had been voted, in June, that Mr. John Tucke, of Hampton, was "chosen to settle with y^e^ inhabitants of Chester in y^e^ work of y^e^ ministry," and that for five years £120 should be raised, annually, for the support of the ministry, by the proprietors and inhabitants, according to their settlement, and afterwards, as the law directs. Capt. S. Ingalls, Dr. Tappan and Mr. Wilson were to wait on Mr. Tucke, and invite him to the work of the ministry, which they did, and received the following reply:

"To y^e^ propr^s^ of y^e^ town of Chester, this day met at Capt. Wingate's, in Hampton:"

Gentlemen: Whereas you w^th^ y^e^ freeholders of y^e^ town of Chester Did, sometime ago, Invite me to y^e^ work of y^e^ ministry in Chester, now these are to signifie that, for Weighty Reasons, I decline settling there. I wish you a happy settlement in God's good time. This from your Hum^ble^ Serv^t^,

JON. TUCKE.

FIRST CHURCH IN CHESTER BUILT IN 1730–31.
(Plan of the body) 50 feet by 38 in dimensions.
Drawn from B. P. Chase's description.

1730. In January of the following year, Rev. Moses Hale was chosen to settle at Chester in the ministry, and he was to receive from the town treasury £120, current money, ($156,80, or as silver 20s per oz., 133,28. This latter is probably the way it was reckoned,) annually, as long as he remained their minister. A committee was chosen "to treat with him, & to acquaint him with what y^e^ town hath done, and to invite him into the work of y^e^ ministery in Chester." They received his answer, which was favorable, and reported to the town.

In relation to his salary it was soon after voted that 20s should be assessed on each full proprietor's share, making in all £127, which might be paid either in money or labor. This at silver 17 sh. pr. ounce—$166,95, (or at 20s per. oz., $141,90.)

In July, a committee was appointed to deliver the minister's lot, joining on Gov. Wentworth's home lot, "with all its divishions and priuelidges" to Rev. Moses Hale, as soon as he should become qualified to receive it, "and in case he shall dew any work, or be at any charge for benefiting said land, and by the Providence of God, shall faile of being a selected minister, and not qualified to reseue s^d^ lott; in that case whatever Mr. Hale shall have layed out upon it, shall be repaid."

It was this year voted to give encouragement to John Aiken to build a grist-mill at the middle falls of "the great brook." This was the first grist-mill in town, and stood down behind John Hazelton's house. The remains of the dam are still visible. Mr. Aiken lived in a house which stood where Mr. Reed lives.

1731. The Committee for building the meeting house having agreed with Peter and Thomas Cochran, of Londonderry, to build it, they went about it immediately, and by the following March it was so nearly finished that the town meeting was held in it on the 25th.

This meeting house stood a few rods south of the present house, near where the guide post is, and faced the southwest.*

In May, at a meeting of the town, it was voted to raise the sum of £230 towards finishing the meeting house, and £30 for preparations for Mr. Hale's ordination.

On the first of September, a meeting was called expressly to take steps in regard to the ordination; and Rev. Mr. Brown, of Haverhill, Rev. Mr. Phillips, and Rev. Mr. Barnard, of Andover, were chosen a committee "to gather and settle a church in Chester, and ordain the Rev. Mr. Hale;" also, Ensign Jacob Sargent, Deac. Ebenezer Dearborn, Enoch Colby, Capt. Samuel Ingalls and Samuel Emerson, Esq., were a committee "to take care for the provision of the ordination." The ordination of Mr. Hale took place October 20th, though no record of it exists on the town books.

Early this year, on petition of several families living near Walnut Hill, a road was laid out from Mr. Emerson's to Mr. Robinson's "for conveniency to go to meeting, and general benefit of the town." This road was two rods wide, and run a short distance further to the eastward than the present road, where a footpath existed before it.

1732. As the settlements extended, the inhabitants began to feel the need of a road to connect the two parishes, consequently in Sept. 1732, it was voted that "a horse or cart path" should be made from the meeting house to the North parish; this was called "Penacook path," and was afterwards laid out into the present highway to Auburn.

1733. A considerable number of the inhabitants of Chester, at the time of Mr. Hale's settlement, were Presbyterians, and more of them continuing to move into town, they became dissatisfied with him; in addition to this, his health was feeble, and he was often unable to discharge his duties as a minister, hence in September, 1733, Lieut. Ebenezer Dearborn, Mr. Nathan Webster, and Capt. Samuel Ingalls were directed "to agree with and hire a minister to preach a quarter of a year" to them. This was probably done, but who was obtained is not known; perhaps it was the Timothy White, who was invited to become their pastor a year or two afterwards. The first mention of a burying place occurs this year, and the spot is specified as containing 18 rods, and situated near "three camp meadow." This was the first burying place in town, and was immediately opposite where the "Copp's house" stands, in Hall's Village, and only two or three rods from the road. The graves were discernable until within twelve or fifteen years; they were marked by round stones at the head and foot, but none bore inscriptions. The land is now smooth, having been cultivated for several years. About fifteen persons were buried in this place, the last of whom was Jonathan Goodhue, who was accidently killed by the falling of a tree, about the year 1740.

1734. The non-residents objected to paying their proportion of the expenses, and this year Mr. John Calfe was empowered, together with Dr. Rogers, to address the General Court, at the next session, in order to compel them to pay "a penny an acre" for what land they hold, until they shall perform settlement according to the true intent of the charter.

The dissatisfaction of the people towards Mr. Hale increasing, and his health continuing poor, he made certain proposals, Feb. 6th, in relation to resigning his charge; whereupon a meeting was holden, on the first Wednesday of June, at the house of Deac. Dearborn, to consider upon them. It was thought best to agree to them, and (June 27th,) Deac. Dearborn and John Calfe were appointed to wait on the minister, and urge a Council for dissolving the pastoral relation between him and the church in Chester. An ecclesiastical council was accordingly held at Salisbury, on the 13th of August, consisting of the Elders and messengers of all the churches in the neighborhood, which agreed on the following:

"Being regularly assembled by virtue of letters, sent from the church of Chester to the aforesaid churches, to advise and direct the said church of Chester what may be most proper for them to do under their present difficult circumstances, by reason of the Rev. Mr. Moses Hale, their pastor, being wholly disenabled from serving them in the work of the ministry; and having made due inquiry into the case and circumstances of the said minister and people, we find that the said Mr. Hale having done little or no service among them, and being, by the Providence of God, brought under great disorder of body and distraction of mind, and for a time 'berived' of his reason and understanding, and thereby rendered incapable of discharging the work of the ministry among them, and so remaining without any present appearance or prospect of being restored to his ministry; and therefore we judge and determine that it is the wisdom and duty of the church and people of Chester to proceed, in regular steps, to call and settle a gospel minister among them, so that they may no longer be destitute of the word and ordinances of Christ; and would also advise and direct the said church and people of Chester that, besides allowing the said Mr. Hale the town right which accrued to him upon settlement, and what also was then given him to encourage his settlement, they should not forget their obligations to be ready to contribute to his support and relief, according to their power and ability. So commending them to the God of Grace and Peace, we subscribe your brethren in Christ,

CALEB CUSHING, Mod'r.

In the name and behalf of the Council."

At a meeting holden a day or two after the foregoing, it was voted that the first Wednesday in September should be observed "as a day of fasting and prayer for advice for another minister," and a committee consisting of five individuals was appointed to receive the advice of the ministers in regard to the subject. The determination of the Council was accepted by the Proprietors, and it was voted, that after three Sabbaths from that time, (September 1st,) the pulpit should be supplied three months at the public charge. The names of Thos Smith, John Smith, Robert Mills, Wm. Carswell, Robert Gilchrist, Andrew Craig, Thos Colwell, Alex. Craig, Patrick Melvin, and Robert Boys are entered as protesting against the above vote, declaring themselves "not of that communion, having hired a minister themselves." Hence it appears that the Presbyterian Society was formed this year, and that a minister was already hired—probably Mr. John Wilson, who was the same year ordained by them. Their meetings were of course held at private houses, as they had yet no church.

1735. Mr. Hale being now dismissed, and being creditor for considerable amount of arrears, the town was constrained to apply, in June, by a brief, to the neighboring towns for aid. This was not granted, for in 1740 the arrears were still unpaid, and portions of the undivided lands were sold to discharge the debt.

The question was now discussed who should be chosen for the next minister, and at a meeting holden Nov. 6th, it was voted that the Rev. Timothy White should be the person, and his salary should be £120 per annum. Deac. Ebenezer Dearborn, Nathan Webster and John Calfe were appointed to acquaint him with his call. Who Mr. White was, does not appear, and he declined the invitation. On this attempt to settle another minister, the Presbyterians, to the number of 31, presented a protest, in the following language:

"Chester, November ye 6, 1735.

We, the under-subscribers Proprietors and inhabitants of the town of Chester aforesaid, do enter our protest or dissent against any charges or costs that shall or may arise by calling, settling or ordaining any other minister, in this town, than the minister which we have already called, settled and ordained, viz: the Rev. Mr. John Wilson, according to the rules of the Presbyterian church, particularly the church of Scotland; and we also insist upon the benefit of the proviso made in the act of the Province law relating to the maintenance and supply of the ministers within this province."

Hitherto the business of the town and of the Proprietary had all been transacted at the regular town meetings, but in Oct. of this year, it was voted that the Proprietor's Clerk be empowered to warn meetings for the present, at the request of twenty or more of the Proprietors of the undivided land in Chester, "they setting forth the occasion of the same, and the time when, and where, and for the warning of said meeting it shall be accounted sufficient to have notifications posted up, one at Chester, one at Pourtsmouth, one at Hampton, one at Newbury, and one at Haverhill, at some public place, fourteen days before said meeting, and the present petitioners for every meeting shall be at the charge of setting up the notification of the said meeting."

This year Mr. John Calfe made proposals to build a fulling mill at "Massabesic brook," (now called "Oswego brook,") and his proposals being accepted by the town, he proceeded to build his mill. It stood near where Nathan Griffin now lives, and was torn down about sixty years ago. It went by the name of "the old fulling mill." In May of this year, (1735,) the throat distemper (technically called Cynanche maligna,) made its appearance, for the first time, at Kingston. It continued to spread through that town and the neighboring towns, but did not reach

Chester until October.* This disease attacked children principally, of whom twenty-one, under the age of ten years, were carried off, in Chester, within less than nine months; who they were I have been unable to ascertain. The summer of 1735, when the sickness began, was unusually wet and cold, and easterly winds greatly prevailed. More than one thousand persons are estimated to have died in the Province of New Hampshire of this distemper. The physicians of Boston held a consultation in 1736, and published their opinion that it proceeded entirely from "some occult quality in the air." In 1754–5 it made its appearance again, and a third time about 1784, and several individuals suffered from it.

The whole population of Chester at this time was probably not over 300 or 350. This calculation is made from the proportions of the deaths in other towns.

1736. On the 23d of June, 1736, the town voted that Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Flagg should be the minister of the town of Chester, and that he should be paid £120 annually, "as silver at 20 shillings an ounce," during his ministry at Chester. At this meeting still another protest was presented, signed by forty-nine members of the Presbyterian Society, declaring the meeting illegal, and objecting to the settlement of Mr. Flagg. After his settlement, which occurred probably in September, many of them refused payment of taxes for his support, whereupon the collector was ordered to commit the delinquents to jail, which order he carried into effect on the persons of Maj. John Tolford and Deac. James Campbell, and took them to Exeter jail. On their release they commenced an action of false imprisonment, and recovered damages. This led to the act which was passed in 1740 incorporating the two Societies separate.†

1737. The year 1737 is noted for the building of "a log pound, 30 ft. square, six feet high, with a good gate, and a lock and key." The spot where it was to be, was "a little south of John Boyd's house." Probably John Boyd lived in a house which used to stand nearly where Alfred Dearborn's shop is, and which was afterwards occupied by Sampson Underhill. The pound was a little above Mr. Lane's house, and was demolished seventy or eighty years ago.

This year the first school was established in Chester by virtue of the following votes, passed April 7th: "Voted, to Rais thirty Pounds to Hier a schoolmaster this present year." "Voted, the Select men shall remove the said scoolmaster to the seurall Parts of the town as shall be conuenant." No account of the master or of where the school was kept can be obtained.

The Cochrans were still the town's creditors for building the meeting house, and the most convenient way was taken, in 1737, to discharge the debt, viz: by sale of public lands.

The lines of the town were now, for the first time "run and perambulated," by Capt. Samuel Ingalls, Jacob Sargent and Samuel Emerson, Esq.; they were paid ten shillings a day, i. e. about seventy-five cts. In August, 1737, Chester was favored with a visit from Gov. Belcher. An account of this tour was published in the papers of the day, and concluded thus: "His Excellency was much pleased with the fine soil of Chester, the extraordinary improvements at Derry, and the mighty fall at Skeag."*

1738. In 1738 the sum of £20, (about $40,) was raised for the support of a school, and £5 "to add to the town's stock of ammunition."

1739. The Presbyterians had hitherto held their meetings in private houses, or in barns, but their number being now considerable, they began to aspire to a church; the subject was introduced at a meeting held April 4, 1739, where it was voted to assess £240 on themselves, "towards building a meeting-house for the Rev. Mr. John Wilson." The house was finished the same year, and stood on a part of one half an acre of land, given to the Society for this purpose and for a burying place, by Mr. Wilson. It was on the west side of the "Haverhill road," and its dimensions were about 35 by 40 feet.† The graves are in a very dilapidated condition. After the death of Mr. Wilson, the church was without a settled minister twenty-four years; it was then removed to the North Parish and rebuilt with considerable additions. It was lately taken down and destroyed, a new one having been built in its stead.

The ill-will between the two Societies had increased to such an extent that this year two constables were chosen, one an orthodox, the other a Presbyterian, and also Mr. John McMurphy was empowered "to prefer a petition to the General Court, to obtain an explanation of the Charter." This was the immediate cause of the incorporation of the two societies.

In May a privilege was granted to John McMurphy "to build a grist mill" at 'Massabesic River,' below the 'great fall,' within two years, "provided said McMurphy shall not stop or impede the course of the fish up the said river, but shall and will leave, contrive, and make sufficient passage for that purpose." This mill was on what is now called "Cohass brook," and "Webster's mills" now occupy the same spot. From this and similar provisos, it appears that the alewives, which came up into Massabesic, were one source of support to the settlers.

1740. In April, 1740, the town voted, for the first time, that a school should be maintained throughout the year, "partly by schoolmasters, and partly by schooldames, as the Selectmen shall judge best for the town."

On the imprisonment of Tolford and Campbell, in 1736, a suit was commenced by their Society which resulted finally in a decision in their favor, and the following record appears on the town book: "Whereas at the settling of the Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Flagg in the work of the ministry at Chester, a number of the inhabitants entered their dissents, alleging that they were of a different persuasion, Presbyterians, according to the Kirk of Scotland, and supposed the law freed them from paying, they applied themselves to the General Court where the law was explained in their favor, the Rev. Mr. John Wilson being their minister, and they having paid Mr. Wilson distinct from the rest of the town, separate from Mr. Flagg's hearers; but now it happens that the 5th article inserted in the warning for the present meeting is to settle a salary upon the Rev. Mr. John Wilson, the moderator not thinking this meeting proper for that affair—they insisting to have something done upon it, the rest of the town being first withdrawn from Mr. Wilson's hearers, the moderator addressed himself to them in the following manner: 'If it be your minds that the Rev. Mr. John Wilson, minister of the Presbyterians, should have one hundred pounds money for his salary for the year ensuing, to be paid by the Presbyterians, his hearers, manifest it by holding up your hands;' 'they that are of the contrary mind, manifest it by the same sign.' Passed in the affirmative, by Mr. Wilson's hearers."

Aug. 7th, the long-wished act was passed incorporating the Societies.

The first Parish meeting of the Orthodox Society was holden Sept. 10th, and adjourned to the 17th, when Benj. Hills, James Varnum and Eliphaz Sanborn were chosen wardens, and Paul Smith, collector. The Congregational church is always specified as "y^e^ old meeting house," in distinction from the new one.

1741. In March, 1741, the proposal was first made to build a school-house; it was to be at "y^e^ centre," but it was not built for some years.

1742. Hitherto the dead had been buried in the burying place, already referred to, at "Three Camp Meadow," but this year the Selectmen were authorized to obtain an acre of land, by exchange, from Jonathan Blunt, "so as to accommodate a decent burying place at the corner of his lot, by the meeting house;" which however was not done for several years, for in 1745, a vote appears again to the same effect; and again 1749, he was paid £60 old tenor for the same piece.

There appears to be considerable uncertainty as to the time of the first burials there; one stone bears the date 1737 without any inscription; another 1744, so it is pretty certain that the place was used, for that purpose, before it was purchased by the town. That part of the present grave-yard next to the main road, is the oldest, and it is said that the west corner of the old burying place is now traversed by the road which turns towards Raymond, and that some of the early graves were outside of the present wall at that part of the yard. The first person buried in this place was Sampson Underhill; he came to Chester from Ipswich, Mass., in 1726 or 7, and lived for a time during the last of his life near where Mr. Quigg lives, and perhaps, too, near where Alfred Dearborn's shop stands. He died probably about the year 1735, and his grave is still remembered; it is near the entrance.

Deac. Campbell, Thomas Wells and Joshua Prescott were appointed a committee to prevent the killing of deer "contrary to the law in that case made and provided;" afterwards these officers were regularly chosen by the town, and called "Deer inspectors."

1743. In March, 1743, the following vote was passed: "Whosoever shall kill a full grown woulfe in this town, shall have twenty shillings Paid him by the town, old tennour, and ten shilling for a woulfe's whelp." This law was reënacted from year to year, and under it bounties were paid to the following persons: To John Robie, for a wolf's head, (1746,) to Daniel McNeal, for ditto, (1747,) John Senter, ditto, (1748,) John Stark, (afterwards Maj. Gen.) ditto, (1749,) Ithamer Berry, for nine wolf's whelps, (1750,) Ithamer Berry, for ditto, (1751,) Ellet Berry, for wolf's head, (1753,) Abraham Berry, ditto, (1754,) John Webster, Joseph Richardson, Sam[l] Hill and Amos Emerson, each for ditto, (1765.) Many other wolves were doubtless killed besides these; they must have been quite common at that time.

The Parish passed a vote in April, that the "three windows in the gallery over each door, and the two long windows on the backside" of the meeting house should "be wholly taken out, and done up with boards and clapboards," also, "if any person had a pew in the meeting house and there was no window against it, he have liberty to make one, he maintaining the same."

Mr. Flagg's salary was paid this year by £30 bills of credit, old tenor.

1744. January 24th, 1744, at a meeting holden, it appears, expressly for the purpose, Mr. Benjamin Hills was chosen "to represent the town in General Assembly;" accordingly he made a journey to Portsmouth for that purpose, but was refused admittance, as the town had not petitioned for leave to send a representative. He returned home, and the following vote, passed two years afterwards, forms the sequel of the story. "Put to vote whether to allow Mr. Benj. Hills anything for his journey to Pourtsmouth in order to represent the town in General Assembly." "Passed in the Negative."

1745. March 29th, 1745, the town voted "to build school housen," and a committee was appointed "to divide the town into several parts in order to accommodate them." This they did, and made, it appears, four districts of it, which are now pretty nearly represented (1) by the "centre" district. The first school house in this district was built a little south of Richard Morse's shop. (2.) In the "Webster district" the first school house was near the Southern corner of John Sanborn's field, opposite Mr. Webster's house; it is said by persons now living who remember it in '75, that it was about twelve feet square. (3.) In the "Walnut Hill district" the first school house was not very far from opposite Wm. Hazelton's house, though somewhat further to the Northward. (4.) The other school house was in that part of the town called "Long meadows," and was probably not far from where the present school house is. These were all built in 1745.

(This year the French war broke out, and soon after, one Bunten was shot by the Indians, near where "Head's tavern" is, in Hooksett. He was a Pelham man, and was on his way to Penacook.)

There were several families of Penacook Indians who resided within the limits of Chester; ten or twelve of them made their home on the large island in the west bay of Massabesic Pond. The vestiges of their wigwams are very evident at the present day. They lived near the west shore of the island, and the places of their tents are denoted by round cavities, perhaps twenty feet across, and two feet deep. The island is overgrown with a heavy growth of wood; others lived on what is called "the island," in Three Camp Meadow, which took its name from this circumstance; a few more lived on "Clark's meadow" near where Couch's saw-mill stands, and others still in Raymond. They were very harmless people, and friendly to the settlers.

1746. In 1746, Mr. Flagg's salary had increased, as it appears, to £240, old tenor.

1747. In 1747, Maj John Tolford and Capt. Thomas Wells were empowered by the town to prefer a petition to the Governor and Council, "in order to stop and save any man from being sent out of the town into the service; and further, when there may be a convenient opportunity, regularly to proceed to have a suitable number of men put and kept in the service in our town." The petition was not granted, and Majors Rogers and Stark augmented the number of their "rangers" considerably, by additions from Chester. The only persons who served in this war that I have been able to ascertain were Capt. David Webster, and two sons of Samuel Emerson, one of whom died at Crown point, the other at Albany.*

Among the curious entries on the town accounts, is charged as follows: "Unto William Turner, for making y^e^ stocks, £3." It was customary to have the stocks stand near the meeting house, and this was probably the case with ours.

1748. There was considerable dissatisfaction in regard to the schools, and in 1748 Thomas Wells and several others presented a petition to the town, praying that a committee might be appointed to petition the Quarter or General Sessions for their aid and assistance, "for the better regulation of schooling." At a special meeting holden Sept. 1, it was voted that the prayer of the petition be heard, and accordingly the Sessions were requested to regulate these affairs.

An attempt had been made once or twice since Mr. Hills' unsuccessful journey to Portsmouth, to petition for liberty to send a representative, but the town appears to have been so offended and disgusted at the proceedings of the Assembly in regard to Mr. Hills, that it invariably refused to petition; but this year the Sheriff of the Province sent a warrant, commanding them to "elect and choose" one man to represent the town in General Assembly. A meeting was accordingly holden Dec. 2d, and Capt. Abel Morse was chosen for this purpose.

1749. In 1749, Mr. Flagg acknowledges the receipt of £355, in full for his salary that year, and in the latter part of the same year, at the request of thirteen parishioners, a parish meeting was called "to consider whether Mr. Flagg shall have fifteen or twenty cord of merchantable firewood, or money sufficient to purchase the same, during the whole time he carries on in the ministry." It was voted that he should, though once or twice before it had been decided differently.

In 1749 the French war ended, and the inhabitants of Chester, as well as of other towns, felt considerable relief. Several garrisons had been maintained, which were as follows: one near where Joseph Webster lives, of which the owner's name is lost; one on the spot where Cowdry's hut is, said to have been kept by Francis Towle; one where Capt. Pickett's house is, kept by Lt. Thomas Smith; the Tolford house, still standing on Walnut Hill, was kept as a garrison by Maj. John Tolford; one near where Melvin's store stands. There are several other buildings now standing, which are said to have been used for garrisons, but it is not likely that they were so numerous as the addition of these to the list would make appear. They are the following: the house where Frank Morse lives in Hall's Village, or one which stood on the same spot; the house occupied by Asa Wilson, said to have been used as a garrison in his grandfather's time; the house where Abel Morse lived, now used as a shed by Mr. Couch. These may all have been used as garrisons for a short time, but were not considered as such.

1750. After the close of the war they were all relinquished.

1751. In March the town voted to set off a parish "taking in the land not incorporated into a township by Amoskeag" and a part of Londonderry. In the following September, this with other tracts was incorporated as Derryfield, which name it sustained until 1810, when it was changed to Manchester.

1752. The small pox broke out in town in the spring of 1752, in the family of Thomas Grier; the expenses of the sickness were discharged by the town.

1753. The Presbyterians of Chester had settled mostly in the extreme southern part of the town, and in the North parish; hence it became necessary for their convenience to divide the Society, and Mr. Wilson preached alternately two weeks at home, and the third at the North Parish; but in March of the next year it was proposed to divide it again for some reason, which called forth a remonstrance, signed by seventeen individuals, asserting that "if the Parish was divided a second time it would ruin it." It was not however done.

1754. In September of the following year a meeting was called to see whether the Parish would "consider the Rev. Mr.

Flagg and make him an addition to his stated salary," which was not permitted.

1755. The same proposition was urged the next year with the same result.

This year (1755,) Sam[l] Emerson, Esq., was chosen representative.

1758. By 1758 the town had grown quite liberal in regard to schooling, the amount raised being £600, from which nine schools were kept, three of them by "school-dames."

"One good and lawful man" was chosen "to serve as grand juror at his Majesty's superior court of Judicature to be holden at Pourtsmouth." It was not for some time after this time that town officers were allowed any pay for their services.

1762. In March, 1762, the present town of Candia was set off as a distinct Parish, and in December of the ensuing year incorporated under its present name. The name of Candia was given to it by Gov. Wentworth, who was once a prisoner on an island of the same name in the Mediterranean Sea.

The first settler in Candia was William Turner, who moved there in 1748; he was there alone until 1755, when John Sargent and several others joined him.

1763. January 12, 1763, Freetown was set off, and in May, 1765, incorporated by the name of Raymond; an unsuccessful attempt at this had been made in 1761.

A curious vote is recorded this year, but which, it appears, was never carried into effect, viz: "Voted that a workhouse be built, or provided by the selectmen, to put and keep those persons in, that (are) idle, poor, disorderly, and lazy, and will not work, and to provide a master to take care of all such persons as shall be committed to said house, that they may be kept to work, and be proceeded with as the law directs." No mention is made of this, afterwards, in this connection, in the town books. It was probably the first poor house maintained by the town, and if so, was procured instead of built, i. e., the poor were bid off to the lowest bidder.

1767. By the estimate made in 1767, and which is probably nearly correct, the population of Chester was 1189—that of the State being 52,700.

1768. In 1768 the town sustained a diminution of numbers by the emigration of several families to the town afterwards incorporated as New Chester, from the fact that most of the first settlers were from Chester. It is now Hill. The town was granted Sept. 14, 1753, to eighty-seven proprietors, who held their first meeting at Chester.

At this time the wages for labor on the highways was regulated by vote, and was two shillings a day for a man, and the same for oxen.

1772. In the spring of 1772 the proposal was made to the Parish to build a new meeting house, and (March 25,) it was voted to build one within two years from that date, "sixty feet long, and forty five ft. wide, and a suitable height." This house was built about fifteen rods North of the old one, on the same spot that the present one now occupies.

1774. It was finished early in 1774, and the first meeting was holden in it on the 18th of May. The town meeting of March 31st was in the old meeting house, which was soon afterwards taken down, and now no traces remain of the place where it stood. The new building still stands, though almost entirely remodeled. About this time the first open opposition was made to the measures of Great Britain. In May the House of Representatives, conformably to the proceedings of the Assemblies in the other colonies, appointed a committee of correspondence, whereupon the Governor dissolved the Assembly, hoping to dissolve the committee also. But they met again, and wrote letters to all the towns in the Province, requesting them to send deputies to hold a convention at Exeter, to choose delegates to a General Congress. The meeting for this purpose was holden in Chester, July 19th, when John Webster, Esq., and Capt. Robert Wilson were "chosen and empowered to meet at Exeter the 21st of this instant, July, at 10 of the clock in forenoon, to join in the choice of delegates for the General Congress, to be holden at Philadelphia, the first day of Sept. next, to devise and consider what measures will be most advisable to be taken, in order to effect the desired end, for the establishment of our rights and liberties on a just and settled foundation, and for the restoring of union and harmony between the mother country and the colonies, and to contribute our proportion of the expenses of sending; that the same may be raised by subscription or otherwise, and if convenient sent by the persons of our town appointed to go to Exeter. Our proportion is £5–18s, lawful money." This money was raised by a rate on the inhabitants.

Eighty five deputies met at Exeter, and delegated two of their number to attend the proposed General Congress.

1775. In January, 1775, in accordance with the recommendation of the provincial committee of Nov. 4, John Webster, Esq., Capt. Rob^{t} Wilson, Capt. Sam^{l} Robie, Deac. Matthew Forsaith, Major French and Robert Calfe were chosen as deputies to meet at Exeter again on the 25th, for choice of delegates to the Congress of May 10th.

At the same meeting, Capt. Dearborn, Amos Emerson, Wm. White, Jacob Chase, Jno. Patten, Simon Bailey, Pearson Richardson, Jethro Colby, Dr. Jno. Ordway, Josiah Bradley, Robert Calfe, Lt. Hoit, Jno. Hazelton, Capt. Wilson, Capt. Robie, Deac. Forsaith, Stephen Morrill, John S. Dearborn, Abner Hills, Samuel Brown, Wm. Shirley, and Jno. Lane, Jr., Jacob Hills, Tho^{s} Shirley and Isaac Towle were appointed a committee of inspection "to see that the agreement of the American Continental Congress shall be strictly adhered to."

(April 13.) It was "voted to give encouragement to a number of men that will hold themselves in readiness, if called for by the town, to go against any enemy that shall presume to invade us or our property;" it was hence voted to raise "50 good effective able-bodied men into the town service" for that end. These men were to have "six Spanish milled dollars, or equal thereunto," per month, and be found in provision as long as they were in the town's service. They furnished their own guns, which were apprized before they marched by Capt. Samuel Robie, the muster master, so that if any were lost the town might pay for them. Each man was obliged to show "one pound of powder, twenty bullets, and a quantity of flints." This company was enlisted by the Selectmen, and chose its own officers. The number was reduced by a subsequent vote to thirty. About this time the battles of Lexington and Concord occurred, and twenty-four of the minute men marched immediately to these towns to contribute their aid.

(May 17.) A third Congress was convened at Exeter, usually designated as the "first provincial Congress." Stephen Morse was the delegate from Chester. This year considerable was said about maintaining a grammar school, but so much opposition was experienced that it was, at length, relinquished.

Another Congress was holden at Exeter for the formation of a temporary government, the 21st of Dec., at which Stephen Morse and Capt. Robert Wilson attended from this town. Their instructions were as follows: that "in case there shall be a recommendation from the Continental Congress that this colony assume government in any particular form, which will require a House of Representatives, that they resolve themselves into such a House as the Continental Congress shall recommend; and no person shall be allowed a seat in Congress who shall, by himself, or any other person for him, before said choice, treat with liquor, any electors with an apparent view of gaining their votes; or afterwards, on that account."

The officers of this temporary constitution were twelve persons, called the Council, of whom seven composed a quorum, in addition to the House of Representatives. No act was valid unless passed by both branches of the Legislature.

1776. In the spring of the next year thirty men were enlisted to help reinforce the army under Gen. Sullivan; they were allowed $13,66 each, as a bounty over and above what the county paid.

1777. In March, 1777, Lt. Samuel Hazelton, Dea. Matthew Forsaith, Henry Moore, Esq., Capt. Samuel Robie, Jethro Colby, Isaac Blaisdell, and Nathan Morse were chosen a committee of safety. In August the battle of Bennington took place, in which were several individuals from Chester, one of whom, Lt. Elliott, was severely wounded by a ball from the gun of an Indian, concealed behind the roots of a prostrate tree.

1778. The small pox appeared in Chester again in 1778, in the family Dr. Page. He contracted the disease at the hospital in Exeter. The town purchased a shop of Nathaniel Blaisdell and removed it into the parsonage, where the family remained until the selectmen judged it expedient for them to return to their home again. Two of his children died and were buried in the parsonage.

This year a singing school was kept at Col. Webster's by Mr. Kimball, of Bradford. He afterwards married Col. Webster's daughter.

At a town-meeting, Feb. 6, 1778, the articles of confederation were read and approved, and the representatives were instructed to propose that the Assembly and Council might form a plan of government for the State, and send it to the several towns and parishes for their acceptance. In May, Samuel Emerson, Esq., was chosen to meet in Convention at Concord, as a delegate, to form and lay a permanent plan or system of government "for the future happiness and well-being of the good people of this State." A system of government was accordingly drawn up and sent to the towns, but was rejected on account of the inadequacy of its provisions.

1779. The families of those who entered the service for three years or longer, were maintained, or at least aided, by the town, as appears by a vote to that effect, and by the returns of the town expenses. This year the burying place, by vote, was fenced anew "with good posts and boards in the reasonablest and best manner," but the vote was afterwards modified so as to have "a good stone wall" on the front side. This wall is there yet. In August, Portsmouth, Exeter, and other town united in recommending to the smaller towns to aid in reducing the prices of the necessaries of life; a meeting was holden at Chester and they signified their approbation of the measure. In accordance with this design a convention was holden at Concord, Sept. 22, to which Jacob Chase was delegated from this town. They passed a series of resolutions which had little or no effect. A committee was chosen, however, in Chester, to see that the prices were observed, and if any person did not comply with them, but should sell any article for more than the established price, he should forfeit the value of the article so sold, and on his refusal to pay that sum, they were instructed " to advertize him in the public prints as inimical to his country."

1780. In 1780, the sum of £1200 ($155.00,) was raised for schooling.

The men enlisted this year were paid in corn, at 30 bushels a month, raised by a corn rate on the inhabitants.

1781. In the spring of 1781, Chester was ordered by the General Court to deliver up its share of beef, 9206 pounds, for the use of the army; this was also raised by a rate on the inhabitants, the town being divided into classes. There was considerable difficulty in collecting this beef; they probably wanted it to eat themselves. More men were required for the service, and the town was divided into districts by the selectmen, each of which was obliged to hire one soldier, " and if any district, or person in any district should refuse or neglect to pay the required proportion, he or they should be assessed double, and be compelled to pay it." No money was raised for schools this year.

1782. The convention for framing the constitution still continued to discuss different systems, and in September sent out a second plan to which the towns were requested distinctly to state their objections, and return them at a fixed time. Accordingly at a meeting, Jan. 1, 1782, the plan was read, and Anthony Stickney, Dea. Forsaith, Col. Webster, Jacob Chase, Esq., Stephen Morse, Lt. Jabez Hoit, Maj. Henry Moore, Isaac Blaisdell and Maj. William White were chosen " to take it under consideration and make any remarks upon the particular articles therein contained that are not agreeable to their thoughts and sentiments, and make return to the meeting at the adjournment," a week from that day. The committee reported their objections and it was rejected by an universal vote, 149 voters being present. Six more persons were added to the committee of amendment, viz: Lieut. Sam[l] Hazelton, Joseph Lynn, Joseph Blanchard, Capt. Benj. Currier, Samuel Emerson, Esq., and Rev. Ebenezer Flagg. The objections of the towns were so many that it was necessary to send out still another plan, in which the mode of representation was changed—every incorporated township containing one hundred and fifty rateable polls, having the privilege of sending one representative. This plan was generally approved by the towns, although Chester still rejected it.

1783. In April, 1783, the State voted to revive and continue the old form of government until June 10, 1784, when the new form should be adopted. This was done, the new system being introduced at Concord by religious ceremonies, which have been since repeated at each annual election.

The schooling was left with the selectmen this year "to do as they shall judge right and just," but they declined acting, and nothing was done.

In April the town was classed a second time to procure seventeen men for the service.

1784. This year the war was ended, and in March, 1784, the first President of New Hampshire was chosen. Meshech Weare was the choice of Chester, with but one dissenting vote; this was for Jno. Sullivan. $200,00 was raised for schooling this year.

FINIS.

Some idea of the character of the early settlers of Chester may be gathered from the following extracts; most of the settlers were from Hampton and Londonderry.

"The first settlers of Hampton were puritans, many of them from Norfolk, one of the strongholds of Puritanism. The motives by which they were influenced in coming to this country were similar to those which influenced the Prilgrims who came over in the Mayflower."

"The settlers of Londonderry were a peculiarly industrious and frugal yet public spirited people, and proved a valuable acquisition to the Province into which they had removed, contributing very considerably to its benefit by their arts and their industry."

NOTICES OF SEVERAL OF THE EARLY INHABITANTS OF CHESTER.

Clergymen.

REV. JOHN TUCKE

Was the son of John Tucke, and great grandson of Rob^{t} Tucke, who emigrated from Suffolk, in England, about 1636, and was one of the first settlers of Hampton, where Rev. John Tucke was born in 1702, Aug. 23d. He graduated at Harvard in 1723, and the next year married Mary Dole, of Hampton. He received a call to settle at Chester, as was seen, in 1729, which he declined, and in July, 1732, he was ordained at Gosport, where he received a settlement of £50, and an annual salary of £110, until 1754, when he was paid in fish at a quintal pr. man, making eighty or one hundred quintals, worth a guinea each. He continued in the ministry there until his death, Aug. 12, 1773. His tombstone at Gosport says:

"He was affable and polite in his manners, amiable in his disposition,
of great piety and Integrity,
given to hospitality."

REV. MOSES HALE

Was the youngest of eleven children of Capt. Thomas and Sarah Hale, of Newbury, Mass., where he was born in 1703. For some reason his name is not recorded on the town books of Newbury, so the exact date of his birth cannot be ascertained.

Mr. Moses Hale graduated at Harvard College in 1722, studied divinity, and in 1730 accepted an invitation from the church of Chester to become their pastor. He was ordained Oct. 20th, 1731, by Rev. Mr. Brown of Haverhill, and Rev. Mr. Phillips and Barnard, of Andover, and continued to discharge the duties of his office until the summer of 1733, when his health became poor.

REV. JOHN WILSON

Was born in Ulster County, in Ireland, in 1709. He entered the University of Edinburgh, where it would appear he was in 1726. His love of the classics, however, was not enthusiastic, to judge from some notes in his Latin school books which are still in existence. He came to this country in 1729, and was ordained over the Presbyterian Church of Chester in 1734. His church was then very limited in numbers. He continued in the ministry at Chester until his decease Feb. 1, 1779. Mr. Wilson's custom was to choose some book of the Bible and deliver lectures on it in course, touching on all the principal points alluded to in the different chapters and verses—many of these display considerable ingenuity in their preparation.

Mr. Wilson lies buried in the Presbyterian graveyard, together with his wife, Jean, who died April 1, 1752, a. 36. His character is thus described: "He was a servant of Christ in the most peculiar and sacred relation, both in doctrine and life. It was his great delight to preach a crucified Christ as our wisdom, righteous, sanctification and redemption. He did not entertain his hearers with curiosities, but with real spiritual good; his sermons were clear, solid, affectionate. A spirit of vital christianity ran through them. His life was suitable to his holy profession. He was a steady friend, a loving husband, a tender parent. His inward grace was visible in a conversation becoming the gospel."

Mr. Wilson had an only daughter, Ann, who married William Mills.

Rev. EBENEZER FLAGG

Was born in 1704, at Woburn, Mass. He graduated at Harvard in 1725, and in June, 1736, he was invited to become the minister of Chester, with an annual salary of £120, "as silver at 20 shillings an ounce," equal to $133,28. Mr. Flagg's ordination took place in Sept. 1736.

He was married to Lucretia Keyes, Nov. 15, 1739. She died March 30, 1764, at the age of forty. Mr. Flagg had a large family of children. He lived where Mrs. Persis Bell now lives. In personal appearance he was of medium stature and rather inclined to be fleshy. He was noted for a pleasant and cheerful disposition. An anecdote used to be related of his perseverance in making the acquaintance of "Parson Wilson," who was reputed rather taciturn and unsociable, and did not encourage his advances much.

Mr. Flagg continued in the ministry at Chester until his death, Nov. 14, 1796. At the time of his decease he had attained the greatest age of any minister in the State, with the exception of Mr. Adams, of Newington.

For some years previous to the Revolution, the Governor of New Hampshire appointed by the crown, was authorized to grant licences for marriages, as a means of augmenting his salary, which was in those days small. He was allowed two crowns for each license. Rev. Mr. Flagg, of Chester, approved of this mode of marrying, and hence clandestine matches were usually known in the adjoining towns as "Flagg marriages." (Parker's Hist. of Londonderry.)

The following notice of Mr. Flagg's death is taken from the "Columbian Sentinel," of Nov. 26, 1796:

"Died, at Chester, N. H., 14th ult., the Rev. Ebenezer Flagg, æt. 93. He continued in the ministerial office during the unusual period of sixty years, and what is observable he survived every parishioner who was active at his settlement. In the characteristic traits of the deceased, are examples worthy to be recommended by a most engaging assemblage of public, domestic and social virtues."

Capt. SAMUEL INGALLS

Was the son of Samuel and Sarah Ingalls, and was born at Andover, Mass., May 7, 1683. He removed to Haverhill, where he married Mary Watts, in 1708. In 1720 he was one of the proprietors of Chester, where he removed in the fall of the same year. He was one of the grantees of the first saw-mill in town; was lot-layer many years, and selectman almost continually from 1723 to 1733. He was the first militia captain of Chester. He first built a log cabin on Walnut Hill, about twenty rods north of Humphrey Niles' house, where he lived until 1732, when he built the first framed house on the spot where Mr. Niles now lives. Mr. Ingalls died Oct. 6, 1747, a. 64. His children were as follows:

1. Elizabeth, b. Sept. 8, 1709, probably m. Jacob Wells, of Chester.

LIEUT. THOS. SMITH

Was born in Ireland, and came to Chester from Hampton in 1720; he lived on or near the spot where Mr. Pickett's house stands, where he had built a block-house of hewn timber. This house was taken down about eighty years ago. In 1724 he was captured by the Indians. He served under the town in various capacities for several years, and, about 1735, removed to New Boston. He had a family.

MAJ. JOHN TOLFORD

Was born at Megilligan, about fifteen miles from Londonderry, in Ireland, in July, 1701, and came to America in 1724. He married Jane McMurphy, of Londonderry, Jan. 8, 1734. He probably removed from Londonderry to Chester in 1727. In 1736 he was committed to jail in Exeter for refusal of payment of taxes for Mr. Flagg's support. Maj. Tolford was a justice of the peace and selectman for many years; he was a man of more than ordinary talent; he had nine children, three of whom were sons.

Maj. Tolford died in July 1791, aged 90 years.

WM. WHITE

Was born in England in 1689; his father was a glover, and removed about 1690 to Derry, in Ireland, where he was wounded in the siege. Wm. White came to this country and settled in Londonderry. He was a linen-weaver. He removed to Chester and purchased the farm now occupied by Joseph Webster in 1732. (?) He built a house on the opposite side of the road from Webster's house. He married in Ireland, but his wife died before he came to America; she had two sons and a daughter. In 1733 he married Jane Graham, of Chester, and had five children. She d. in 1755, a. 45. His son

He had in all sixteen children—too numerous to mention, (vide town books.) In 1777 Mr. White was appointed Major, in 1784, Lt. Col.; he was long a Justice of the Peace. Col. White was one of the principal Presbyterians, and died about 1830.

SAMPSON UNDERHILL

Was born in England, and emigrated to Ipswich, Mass. He set up his trade of a clothier there in 1626 or 7. He removed to Chester, and settled near where Mr. Quigg lives; married an Ambrose; and had three sons, 1. John, afterwards a Capt.; 2. Hezekiah; 3. Moses. He died about 1735, and was the first person buried in the present graveyard. He is the progenitor of all the Underhills in Chester.

JOHN CARR

Was born in 1709, and came to Chester in 1724, probably with his father. He married Elizabeth Patten, (d. Sept. 2, 1781, a. 76.) In 1724 he was taken by the Indians, together with Lieut. Smith. Physicians of Chester.

Dr. ROGERS.

His name is mentioned from 1730 until 1734. It is by no means certain that he lived in Chester.

Dr. GEORGE WOOD

Came to Chester about 1745 and remained a few years. He taught school three years in Chester. He removed to Londonderry, where he practised from 1770 until 1785.

Dr. SAMUEL MOORES

Removed to Chester before 1749, and lived in that part of the town now Candia. He kept school in 1749 and 50. About 1750 he m. Mehitable Ingalls, the first white child born in Chester. They had two ch., Peter b. Dec. 13, 1751, David b. Feb. 26, 1754. In 1751, he and his wife owned the covenant. He practised in Candia until his death, Oct. 28. 1793.

Dr. WM. RAND.

It is uncertain whether he was a physician at all, and if he was, whether he practised in Chester. There was a Dr. Rand in Londonderry, according to Mr. Parker's History. This Dr. Rand is mentioned in later years as a town pauper. It is likely that his knowledge was confined to roots and herbs. Dr. Rand, it seems, commenced practise in Chester in 1755 or 6, but became insane and went to Londonderry. He began practise in Londondery in 1750.

Dr. JOHN ORDWAY, (probably of Newbury,)

Came to Chester and began to practise about 1755. He kept school several years in Chester. His dwelling was nearly opposite John Robinson's house. He joined the church with his wife in 1761. He m. a Miss Robie of Chester and had several ch. He d. in 1775. Dr. Ordway was the principal physician of the town for 20 years, and apparently was better qualified to practise than some of his brethren of the present day.

Dr. BENJ. PAGE

Came to Chester propably about 1775. He lived where Joseph Robinson's house stands. His buildings were destroyed by fire in 1795. In 1778 his family had the small pox and two of his children died of it. He was an unlucky man in Chester, and in 1795 he removed to Exeter.

Dr. FOX

Lived a short time in Chester about 1770.

Dr. THOMAS SARGENT

Lived and practised in town from 1775 until 1819, when he removed. He was esteemed a good physician.

The remaining physicians up to the present time, in Chester Village, are Drs. Ebenezer Hills, (d. Sept. 27, 1790, a. 30,) Jonathan Shaw, Benja. Kittredge, Samuel Foster, Rufus Kittredge, and Jacob P. Whittemore.

The Attorneys at Law in Chester until 1800 were John Porter, (about 1790.)
Arthur Livermore, (about 1793.)
Daniel French, about (1797.)
Amos Kent, about (1798.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

Massabesic pond is the only considerable body of water which was included within the bounds of the Charter of Chester, although there are several small ponds. Massabesic is estimated at about twenty miles in circuit. It was formerly the residence of several families of Penacook Indians, and its name is supposed to be derived from two Indian words, "Massa" signifying great, and "peseag," lake. This is very probable from the fact that there was no other considerable pond in the vicinity. These words are explained in Ralle's dictionary of the Abenaquis tongue, which was the language spoken by the Penacooks. Alewives formerly came up into this pond in great abundance, and formed one means of support to the settlers in its vicinity, as did also the falls at Amoskeag. The cave known as the Devil's den is near the eastern shore of Massabesic. It is an irregular cavity in the ledge, extending in a slightly oblique direction nearly sixty feet into Mine Hill. "Penacook path" formerly passed over the east side of this hill; the road now however goes on the west side. There is another cave in Rattlesnake Hill, on the west side of the pond.

Many of the names which formerly existed in town are now gone; the following are some of these: Blunt, Campbell, Goodhue, Graham, Tolford, Varnum, Berry, Boyd, Carswell, (formerly lived in the woods now owned by J. Webster,) Colby, Craig, Crosett, Foss, Gilchrist, Leach, McPhedris, McPherson, Megee, Moulton, Neal, Healey, Powell, Presson, Quenton, Tyler, Whiting and Weatherspoon. Several other names exist only in the towns which have been taken from Chester, or are represented by females only, such are Aiken, Calfe, Glynn, Blaisdell, Crawford, Dickey, Wardwell, Richardson, Towle, &c.

Sherburne Dearborn is now the oldest individual in Chester. He completed his 93d year, Sept. 6, 1851.

Mrs. Hills died in Chester in 1851, aged 99. Mr. Benj. Pike Chase, now resident in Auburn, is in his 90th year, and retains his faculties in a great degree; his father removed to Chester when he was nine years of age.

Robert Knowles and Joseph Carr are now between eighty and ninety years of age.

The first pauper mentioned is Sarah Berry in 1752. No other is mentioned until 1768. By 1768 occur the names of Abigail Davis, widow Ambross, widow Basford and widow Hills. The names of some of the most respectable inhabitants are recorded as bidding off the aforesaid paupers to board—such are Winthrop Sargent and Lt. Thomas Hazelton.

CHESTER probably received its name in compliment to George Augustus II. of England, who came into possession of the titles and estates of Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester in 1714. He did not become King until 1727. This derivation is, like most conjectures in regard to the names of towns, uncertain. More likely it is named from the city of Chester, in Cheshire, England.

About 1790, John Tolford, son of Dea. Wm. Tolford, in a fit of insanity, shot Timothy Wells, killing him instantly. He was afterwards confined.

About 1830, a man by the name of Welsh, now residing in Auburn, unintentionally killed an individual by a blow on the head with a stake in a dispute. He was committed to the State prison for the offense of manslaughter, but was subsequently pardoned.

It was at the bridge over "Exeter river," mentioned under date 1720, that the money was to be deposited by Mr. Odiorne, and that Capt. Mitchell, of Londonderry, was apprehended on suspicion of being the rogue. See Parker's Hist. of Londonderry, and the N. H. Historical Collections, Vol. 2, (1823.)

The manner in which I came to know the date of the erection of the first house was this. The house was built by Samuel Ingalls, and John Hall, of Chester, who is a descendant of Ingalls, remembers having heard Nathaniel, son of Sam[l] Ingalls, say that he was four years of age at the time his father moved into the "great house." By the Chester records Nathaniel Ingalls was born Dec. 12, 1727. Hence the house was probably built in the spring or summer of 1732.

In looking over some old accounts, I found among the town papers an entry to the following effect: "The following individuals were allowed ten shillings this year, on account of their settlement in the Chestnut Country, 1720." The names were those given under the head of "First Settlers." There were three such lists, one of 1720, one of 1721, and one of 1722.

NATHAN WEBSTER

Of Bradford, (b. July 21, 1715,) m. Martha Blaisdell, of Chester, in 1742. Their son Nathan, b. Dec. 26, 1743, m. Eliz. Clifford, in 1771. Their son Josiah was born Jan. 16, 1772. He fitted for college under Mr. Remington, of Candia, Mr. Thayer, of Kingston, and Hon. Stephen P. Webster, graduated at Dartmouth in 1798, and studied theology with Rev. Mr. Peabody, of Atkinson. He d. March 27, 1837. (Hist. Reg. vol. 1, No. 4.)

SMITH AND CARR.

The traditions in regard to the taking of Smith and Carr are not at all well defined. Of the descendants of Smith none now reside in Chester; some of the descendants of John Smith, his brother, however, are still in Chester, viz: Capt. David Shaw, whose mother was daughter of Silvanus, and grand-daughter of John Smith. His mother used to tell the story of her great uncle's capture, although in a very confused manner. She was, when I saw her, over ninety years of age. I have heard the same account from some other old inhabitants of Chester. No recollection of the fact of Carr's capture exists in the families of his descendants, who are, however, numerous in Chester.

Rev. MOSES HALE.

In regard to Rev. Moses Hale, I obtained the date of his birth from Mr. Coffin, of Newbury. Moses is not mentioned on the town books of Newbury as a son of Justice Thomas Hale, but in the latter's will he speaks of his son Moses, without, however, referring to his having been at college. He gives him land in Rowley, from which circumstances Mr. Coffin doubts whether this Moses was the minister of Chester. The will of Thos. Hale was made in 1730. The children mentioned by Justice Thomas Hale in his will are the following: 1. Thomas, (b. according to Newbury Rec. in 1683,) 2. Ezekiel, (b. 1689,) 3. Nathan, (b. 1691,) 4. Daniel, (b. 1697,) 5. Joshua, (b. 1701,) 6. Moses, (b. according to Mr. Coffin's supposition, in 1703,) 7. Edna, (b. 1684,) 8. Mary, (b. 1687,) 9. Hannah, (b. 1699.) Two other children, not mentioned in the will, died young, viz: Sarah, (b. 1693,) Ebenezer, (b. 1695.)

Mr. Coffin mentions a will written by Jacob Hale, of Boxford, in 1731, in which he mentions his father Joseph, and his brothers, Abner, Ambrose, Joseph and Moses, who was born Dec. 25, 1701. Joseph Hale, the father, was of Newbury, and married Mary, dau. of William Watson, of Boxford.

The death of Rev. Moses Hale, I obtained proximately from Mr. Sibley, of Cambridge, by means of the old triennial catalogues of Harvard.

Sept. 1853. I have recently ascertained that my suppositions in regard to Mr. Hale being a native of Boxford, are true. The following facts are all I know at present about him. He was son of Joseph and Mary Hale, and was born at Boxford, Mass., Dec. 25, 1701. He graduated at Harvard, and was settled at Chester, as has been stated, whence he was dismissed by council, in 1735. He returned to Haverhill, where he died in the year 1760. He m. Mrs. Abigail Wainwright, Sept. 28, 1731. (These are certain.)

Rev. JOHN WILSON.

Rev. Mr. Wilson's history I took principally from Farmer's N. H. Gazetteer. I also obtained some information from his grandson, Benj. Mills, of Chester. There is a mistake in the Gazetteer of several years in the date of his death. I copied the inscription from his tombstone.

Rev. EBENEZER FLAGG.

Mr. Flagg's birth-place I have stated to be Woburn. I do not however consider this as certain. A portrait of Mr. Flagg is in the possession of the French family in Chester.

Capt. INGALLS.

I obtained my information in regard to him from the Andover, Haverhill and Chester records, and from Mr. John Hall, of Chester, whose wife is one of his descendants; also from Benj. P. Chase, of Auburn.

Lieut. SMITH.

My information in regard to Lt. Smith was from the Chester records, and from Deac. Thomas Smith, of New Boston, his grandson. Also, some facts from B. P. Chase, in regard to his dwelling, &c.

Major TOLFORD.

My information was from the town records, and from various aged people who recollect him. I copy the following from the Collections of the N. H. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV, p. 201 :

" He was selected in 1754, being then a Major, by the Government of N. H., as one of the officers to command the party sent to explore the Coos county, which party set out March 10, and in 7 days reached the Connecticut river at Piermont. They were accompanied by John Stark, who had been, the preceding year, a prisoner among the Indians and was acquainted with that region, as a guide. After passing one night, and making such observations as their time would allow them, they returned, and on the 13th day from the time they left, reached Concord."

Clough says in his journal, " In the afternoon we scouted some (Aug. 20, 1746,) in the woods, but made no discovery. But Capt. Tolford with his men discovered where there had laid some Indians in ambush, and also found where the Indians had roasted some corn."

ABNER CLOUGH'S JOURNAL.

Abner Clough's journal of the march of Capt. Ladd and his men sent by the Governor and Council of N. H., to protect the inhabitants of Rumford and the adjoining towns against the incursions of the Indians.

"July 14, 1746. Firstly, marched from Exeter to Beach plain, in Kingston. On the 15th day marched to Chester, and there took more men. On the 16th day enlisted more men. On the 17th day marched from Chester town to a place called Isle Hook's pond, and scouted around the pond, and then camped; about 11 miles." The company continued to scout through Rumford, Canterbury, &c., until the 31st, and then returned to Exeter; and on the 5th of August started again. "Isle Hook's pond" answers very nearly to what is now known as "Lakin's pond."

"Aug. 5. Marched to Beach plain, in Kingston, and there camped. And on the 6th day marched to Chester town, and it rained, and there camped, and on the 7th day marched about three miles above Massabesic pond, and there Lieu. Jonathan Bradley overtook Capt. Ladd and his men. Lieut. Bradley being not well rode up after the company and said that he came along by a place called the North Branch, in Chester, and there he said that he tracked a scout of Indians, about 12 or 15 as he thought there might be, and was very confident that they were Indian's tracks. And Capt. Ladd took about twenty of his men and went back and ranged the woods where he thought likely to discover something of these Indians, as he saith, but could make no discovery, and so went down to Kingston and Exeter, and told the news about the Indians being tracked." Capt. Ladd again marched through Chester on his way to Concord, Sept. 6. The rest of Capt. Ladd's men continued on after he left them on the 7th, to Concord. Several of them (and among them Lt. Bradley,) were killed at Concord on the 11th, by a party of Indians, of which the scouting party discovered in Chester, made a part. Coll. of N. H. Hist. Society, Vol. IV. p. 201.

In 1775, the population of Chester stood thus:

Males, under 16,	384
Males, under 50, over 16,	273
Males, over 50,	101
Females,	787
Fire arms fit for use,	175
Powder in private hands,	30 lbs.
Whole population,	1545

The list of school teachers previously given was taken from the Town records, and is probably nearly correct.

The list of Revolutionary soldiers I found in an old book, saying on the cover, "This is for what is allowed to soldiers." On the back of it is the date Dec. 19, 1777.

SMITH AND CARR.

Since writing the account of the captivity of Smith and Carr, I have received a very particular account of it from Dea. Thos. Smith, grandson of Lieut. Smith, who was surprised by the Indians and taken captive in Chester, viz: "The facts are remarkably clear in the Deacon's mind. John Carr was brother-in-law of Lieut. Smith; his sister being Smith's wife, and Carr was but 18 years of age when they were captured by the Indians. It was on this wise, viz: They were making a tree (or brush) fence to secure the cow from the Indians. One tree lodged against its neighbor, and they were watching to see which way another would fall, (with a view of bringing down the first,) when they were surprised by the crack of a rifle and the ball passed between them, touching Smith. The Indians sprang upon and seized them, a scuffle ensued in which Smith turned the butt of his gun and brought it down with a view of sinking the lock into the head of Capt. Joe English, the leader of the Indians, but missing his aim he struck him on the side of the head which sallied him back, but English recovering threw Smith, and they (Smith and Carr) were both secured and led away. They proceeded northward till night, when the keepers each managed to secure his prisoner for the night. They were not allowed to see where each other lodged. Smith's captor cut a notch in the spreading root of a beech tree, and after several trials fitted in the ankle of the prisoner, then drove down a stake firmly against the notch so as to make the foot secure while the prisoner was lying on his back. His arms were also tied behind him with the sinews of deer. Thus he rested. The next morning they pursued their journey, but not rapidly; the prisoners not being allowed to speak to each other. The next night Smith took special notice in which direction from him Carr was placed. He was secured as on the night previous, with the addition however of having hooks put over the elbows and driven firmly into the ground. Resolving to make his escape, after his Indian was asleep, (the Indian slept on the ends of the cords with which he was bound,) he gradually tried the strength of his strong arms, and the hooks gave way. Then he found that the cords would give. He continued to strain upon them until he could get his thumbs under the cord that stretched across his breast; then with that aid he raised it upon his chin, then got it to his mouth, and after long trial succeeded in raising it over his nose, and finally over his entire head. Soon he extricated himself entirely without waking the Indian. He might have killed the party but thought it would be murder. Leaving them to their pleasant dreams they found a stream of water in which they traveled as far as possible to elude the dogs. At length they climbed some trees and soon the day dawned, when they heard the alarm-whoop of their disappointed captors, which was answered by another party on the opposite side of them. Their position was now, of course, a critical one, directly between two parties of Indians so near as to answer each other with the voice. Descending they made their way back towards Chester, where they arrived on the evening of the third day after their capture. The garrison was at Chester, not 'Londonderry.'"

The above is the relation of Dea. Smith, of New Boston, now over eighty years of age. It was furnished me by Rev. Mr. Kellogg of that town. I presume it is substantially correct. The other party of Indians which he refers to was probably a part of the company who captured them. They were probably prowling about in the neighborhood, having left the care of Smith and Carr to those who claimed the right of masters over them. Mr. Kellogg adds, "The Indians from whom they escaped surprised and killed two or three men the next day while working in a field near Concord."

Rev. MOSES HALE.

Since writing the account of Mr. Hale, I have become satisfied that he was not, as has usually been supposed, a native of Newbury, and born in 1703, but of Boxford, and born Dec. 25, 1701.

I have several letters which induce me to believe so, from which I make these extracts. (From Mr. Coffin, author of the History of Newbury, dated 25 Oct. 1851.) "Now, as Thomas Hale in his will, mentions his son Moses, just as he does his other sons, and makes no allusion to his having been at college, and gives him land in Rowley, the question is, is this Moses the one who was settled in Chester, N. H.? He was settled in 1731, and the will was made in 1730. I am in doubt about it." "Among the wills in Ipswich I find one written in 1731, by Jacob Hale, of Boxford. In this will he mentions his father Joseph, his brothers Abner, Ambrose, Joseph and Moses. He also mentions his only child Mary. His father Joseph, was of Newbury, and married Mary Watson, dau. of Wm. Watson, of Boxford. Now it is possible that the Rev. Moses Hale, of Chester, was born in Boxford, and was the son of Joseph and Mary Hale." Also, from Mr. Coffin in a later letter, which I have lost I have it stated that he has since become certain that Mr. Hale was not a native of Newbury.

(Hon. Artemas Hale, of Bridgewater, writes as follows:) "Thomas Hale had a son Moses, born in 1702–3. He died in Rindge in June, 1763. This, however, cannot be the one settled in your town, as it appears by the records of the town of Rindge, he had two children born in Rowley—one 28 Feb. 1732, the other, 28 Nov. 1733." The town records of Rindge say, "Mr. Moses Hale was born in Newbury, and died in Monadnock, No. One, June 19, 1752." (In pencil marks,) On grave-stone, 1762, June 19*th.*"

(Eliphalet Hale, of Keene, died recently, a. 80, as follows:) "The father of my great grandfather (i. e. the grandfather of the Newbury Moses Hale,) had three sons, viz: Thomas, (b. 1658,) Joseph, (1671,) and Samuel, (1674.) I do not know whether the latter had any children. If not, the Chester Moses must have been either my grandfather, or the son of my great grandfather's brother Joseph. I do not see how he could have been my grandfather, as he was at that time residing in Rowley, or at least having children born unto him in that place." These children were "Moses, born in Rowley, 28 Feb. 1732, Enoch, born in Rowley, Nov. 28, 1733, and Nathan, b. in 1743." (Mr. E. Hale continues,) "I think my grandfather, (i. e. the Newbury Moses) was not the Rev. Moses Hale who settled in Chester. I have never heard that he was a graduate of Harvard College, or had ever been settled in the ministry."

As it appears conclusively that the minister of Chester was not Moses Hale of Newbury, it only remains to prove that he was of Boxford. This can be done by the veritable Dictum of Aristotle, de omni et nullo. The circumstances and the testimony of the descendants of the Hale family prove that Rev. Mr. Hale was either one or the other of these two—either of Newbury or Boxford. He cannot be of Newbury, unde sequitur—he must be of Boxford.

In regard to the throat distemper of which so many people died in N. H. in 1735 and 6, the only words in Mr. Fitch's account of the subject, in regard to Chester, are the following communicated by Joseph B. Felt, of Boston:

"In Chester have died under ten, twenty-one. One family lost three."

Mr. Webster probably began to keep a store as early as 1745; he kept first where Mr. Frank Morse lives, in Hall's Village. About 1750 he had a clerk (or partner) named John Patten.

If the above were reckoned in "Old Tenor currency," I have set them too high. I think however that they reckoned by "lawful currency," probably.

The town of Chester labors under a great disadvantage in the matters of History, owing to the loss both of the early Church Records in the time of Mr. Hale until 1736, (supposed to have been destroyed or stolen by Mr. Bradstreet,) and the entire records of the Presbyterian Society until about 1815. The Church Records in Mr. Flagg's ministry at Chester were not kept comme il faut. The Parish Records begin at the incorporation of the Society in 1740.

THE VALLEY OF THE MERRIMACK.

An Address delivered before the New Hampshire Historical Society, June 13, 1860.

BY JOSEPH B. WALKER, ESQ.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Society; Ladies and Gentlemen:—Your attention is this afternoon invited to some remarks upon our beautiful Merrimack and its Valley. Our subject is a familiar one, yet, we have hoped that, notwithstanding its want of novelty, a brief glance at their physical features, at the early occupation of the valley by the aborigines, and its subsequent discovery and settlement by the whites, as well as at several other kindred topics, if our hour shall permit us to make to them a brief allusion, may not prove altogether profitless or uninteresting.

From whence comes this word Merrimack, and who can tell us its signification? for the people who invented it have perished, and theirs has become not only a dead, but a lost language. A scanty vocabulary of some of its most common words, imperfect at best, and but partially reliable, is all that remains of it.

This name is frequently met with in the early Colonial Records of Massachusetts, and is sometimes written "Merremack,"* and at others "Monomack." Although always applied to the same stream, and not very unlike in sound, the words Merremack and and Monomack differ widely in original signification. The former, according to Judge Potter, was invented by the Northern Indians, and its etymology is "merruh," strong, and "auke," place; the place of strong current,—a term not inappropriate, when we consider the former length and frequency of the river's rapids, now for the most part flowed out by the dams which the great manufacturing interests have thrown across its stream. The latter,

* This word is variously spelled. In the petition of the inhabitants of the County of Essex, Mass., for a grant of land at Penacook, in 1721, it is written "Merrimake" and "Merrymake"; in the Records of the Proprietors of Penacook, "Merrimack," and in the Colonial Records of Massachusetts, "Merimacke," "Merimack" and "Merrimacke."

"Monomack," we are told, was the name applied to the river by the Massachusetts Indians, best acquainted with its lower sections, and derived from "Mona," island, and "auke," place, the island place; a term also quite appropriate, on account of the number and importance to the Indians of the beautiful islands, that like emeralds adorn its bosom, and divide its stream.

The earlest mention we have found of the Merrimack, is by the French Calvinist, De Monts, who, heading an expedition from Havre, March 7, 1604, made settlements that year at Port Royal and upon the island of St. Croix. The Northern Indians told him of a beautiful river at the South, which they called the "Merremack." The year following, 1605, Sieur De Champlain, following the directions of Indians met at Piscataqua Bay, made actual discovery of it and named it "Riviere du Gas." This doubtless, was its first discovery by white men. But it did not long retain the name thus given it. Its old Indian appellation has ever adhered to it.

At the commencement of its settlement by the whites, the Valley of the Merrimack was in the occupation of some half a dozen different tribes of Nipmuck Indians, located at different points along the river from Winnepisseogee Lake to the Ocean.

Its lower section for some miles was in the possession of the Agawams. Farther up, near where Lowell now stands, lived the Wamesits or Pawtuckets. About the mouths of the streams still bearing their names, dwelt the Nashuas and Souhegans. Above the falls and rapids that now afford motive power to the most extensive manufactories of our State, resided the Namoskeags; while the broad intervales, verdant and fertile, of the present towns of Bow, Concord, Boscawen and Canterbury, were held by the Penacooks, the most powerful of all these tribes. Still farther North, at "Aquedahtan," near the outlet and upon the shores of our great lake, lived the Winnepisseogees. These all acknowledged the sovereign authority of Passaconaway, the great Sachem of the Penacooks, and from this circumstance, perhaps, they bore collectively among the English, the general name of Penacooks.

The various characteristics which distinguished the other New England tribes, adhered to the Indians of this Valley. They made no advances in civilization, but led the unsettled life of the forest. Theirs were the usual Indian occupations of hunting, fishing and war, with so much of the practice of a rude agriculture, as would afford them a limited supply of beans, maize, pumpkins and tobacco. The river yielded them fish in great abundance, and for the purpose of securing supplies of salmon, shad, eels and alewives, they assembled at stated seasons at the falls of Amoskeag, Hookset, Wamesit, Penacook and other similar places of more or less note. Indeed the very name "Wamesit," the place of large assembly, arises from the fact of the Indians collecting here, in large numbers, from far and near, in April and May, to secure at Pawtucket Falls, near by, their usual supply of fish for the ensuing season. The woods abounding in game, by trapping and the chase, they secured meats in abundance, together with a sufficiency of furs and skins for their beds and their wardrobes.

The Indian tribes have ever been addicted to war, and those of this valley cannot be cited as affording an exception to this general rule. The sanguinary battle between the Mohawks and Penacooks at Sugar Ball Plain, just across the river and within a mile of the place of our present assembling, was a sample of the conflicts frequently waged, where Indian energy, cunning, cruelty and revenge combined to make Indian warfare horrible.

Their religious notions were extremely crude. At the installation of the first minister of this place, in 1730, the Rev. Mr. Barnard, of Andover, told the early settlers, in his ordination discourse, that Satan formerly had his seat at Penacook, and "that the devil was wont to be invocated there by God forsaken salvages,"* an utterance not very highly complimentary to the

* Passaconaway, the Bashaba of the Merrimack Valley, was regarded, says Hubbard, "as a great sorcerer and his fame was widely spread. It was said of him that he could cause a green leaf to grow in Winter, trees to dance, water to burn, &c."

Whittier, in his beautiful poem entitled the Bridal of Penacook, representing the current belief of the Indians, says of him:

"For that chief had magic skill,
And a Panisee's dark will,
Over powers of good and ill,
  Powers which bless and powers which ban —
Wizard lord of Pennacook,
Chiefs upon their war-path shook,
When they met the steady look
Of that wise dark man."

native gentlemen, whose lands were now wanted by our Christian forefathers.

But the loving heart of the Apostle Elliot had before this yearned for their enlightenment, and threading the dense forests he had often visited them at Pawtucket, at Nashua, and at Namoskeag. Nor were his efforts fruitless, for he established schools among them, and preached to them with success. Through his instrumentality many were converted to Christianity, and in 1648, the great Sagamon, Passaconaway, renounced the superstitions of his fathers and embraced Christianity at Pawtucket. Twenty years afterwards Wanalancet, his son and successor, professed the same faith, in presence of Elliot, Gen. Gookin, and large numbers of his people, and his subsequent life attested the sincerity of the act.

The agriculture of the aborigines was quite limited in extent. They tilled but small patches of the rich intervals and uplands of the Valley, which were left for the most part in their natural state. They understood however pretty well the culture of pumpkins, beans, tobacco, and maize, and selected with rare discrimination the soils best adapted to their production. When in the course of time, the soil became worn, they occasionally increased its fertility by dropping a fish in the corn hill at planting; but this is about the only instance that comes down to us of their use of fertilizers. These labors however, little relished by the lords of the forest, devolved principally upon their more patient squaws.

They also cleared other portions of the intervals which thereupon produced spontaneously and abundantly crops of a wild tall grass, resembling the prairie grass of the West, and which by an annual burning off in the autumn ever flourished luxuriantly. But they valued this merely as a food for the deer, which sought it in this vicinity, and at other points in great numbers. It was never cut and preserved, for no animals were domesticated to consume it. The nomads of the East have their flocks and herds, but it was not so with the Indians. Theirs was a lower social state than that of the modern Bedouin of the desert. The parts of the intervals not cleared, were covered with a dense growth of elms, bass, butternuts, maples and other deciduous trees.

The Indian made but a slight impress upon the natural features of our Valley. No vestiges of carefully constructed highways, no crumbling arches of bridges that once spanned the streams, no mouldering ruins of stately buildings are anywhere to be found; for his highway was a forest trail, his bridge a prostrate tree, his house a fragile wigwam. An arrow-head, occasionally thrown up by the plow, or a few skeletons disinterred by modern excavations, now and then attest their former presence, and remind us that the tribes, once possessors of the lands we now occupy, are an extinct people, and that their language and their history are in a great measure obliterated.

Passaconway had the sagacity early to perceive that all attempts to stay the wave of English immigration rapidly overspreading the territory of his people, must be vain; that they must retreat inland at the approach of a superior race and yield to them their lands, now coveted for higher purposes than those to which the aborigines had devoted them. He adopted therefore a pacific policy, and sought relations of friendship with his new neighbors, and at his death, which occured about 1668, enjoined upon Wanalancet, his son and successor to the Sagamonship, a like course of action. This the latter carried out with fidelity, even at the cost of the fealty of a considerable portion of his people, who left him and fled to the hostile standard of Kancamagus.

We have before alluded to the discovery of the Merrimack by Champlain, whose name is still with us and attaches to the beautiful lake that laves the opposite shores of Northern New York and Vermont. Little however, was known of it for many years, and its entire course was supposed to be a continuation of that which it pursued from the sea to Pawtucket Falls. This misconception proved, ere long, a serious one, serving as it did for the boundary line of several important and extensive grants of territory. For the Marianna grant made in 1621, by the Plymouth Council to Mason, had for its Northeastern boundary line the "River Merrimack to the head waters thereof." So the Laconia Grant, made the following year, to Gorges and Mason, was bounded on the Southeast by this river. It also appears by the celebrated Wheelwright deed of 1629, to have been one of the boundary lines of the territory embraced in that instrument, and Mason's New Hampshire Grant had, too, for one of its lines "the Merrimack River to the farthest head thereof."

But where was "the farthest head thereof?" This became, ere many years, a question of grave importance to the residents in the Southern part of New Hampshire, for on the 31st of May, 1652, it was decided by the General Court of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, that the extent of their North line was "from the Northernmost part of the river Merrimack, and three miles more North, where it is to be found, and thence upon a straight line, East and West, to either sea," a line somewhat more liberal than our Massachusetts friends were subsequently able to maintain, although in the language of the record, it was voted the true one, "by the whole Court," and the farthest head of the river, determined by their commissioners to be at Aquedahtan, at the outlet of "Winnapuscakit Lake."*

This might possibly have fixed the point for all coming time, had it not been for the fact that, a few miles below, another branch, of equal or superior volume, was found to exist, and which, pursuing a more Northerly course, could be traced to the very chin of the Profile of Cannon Mountain, in Franconia; and farther still, by various other tributaries, to the base of Moosehillock and to the Western slopes of the White Mountains, flowing now with a deep and silent current, beneath the shadows of the bordering woods, and then, at intervals, as if wearied with so staid a course, gliding swiftly down perilous rapids, or dashing over more perilous cascades, and throwing back, as in sport, the sunlight that penetrated anon the dense foliage that arched its way.

We would not, at this late day, ask which of these two streams was the true Merrimack, or at the sources of which "the farthest head thereof," was to be sought, as all questions depending thereon have been long settled; but rather, in a spirit of compromise and by a kind of gallant personification, regard one as the daughter of the magnificent Lake, which the great Spirit had adorned with wooded shores and green islands and his own smile, and the other as the stalwart son of the Old Man of the Mountain, whose face of rock, "the same yesterday, to-day, and for ages to come," ever watches with solicitude his outgoings, accord to each a separate independent importance and individuality. But when ere long, by some mysterious, divine sympathy, their streams converge, and the manly salutation of the latter rushing in hot haste over the Eastman falls, at Franklin, is answered by the milder, yet unmistakeably assenting response of the former, as just across the hill, she dances smilingly down her rocky way, and sweeps gracefully around the meadow's bank, the question of precedence is settled by a union nothing can sunder.

* These commissioners were Capt. Edward Johnson and Capt. Simon Willard. They decided August 1, 1652, that the farthest head of the Merrimack was at the outlet of Winnipisseogee Lake, and their initials have been found cut upon a large rock near this point.

> For the Winnepesaukee, so sprightly and mild,
> Of a beauteous mother, the more beautiful child,
> Would you guess it, would you guess it?
> Gives her fair self to the wild Pemigewasset.

From this point of union, thus formed, the Merrimack, with a broader stream, flows onward to the sea. For the first sixty miles its course is Southerly. At Chelmsford it makes a sudden deflection to the left, and thence in a direction a little North of East, pursues its way to the Atlantic, at Newburyport. It is enlarged from time to time, by many considerable tributaries, which increase very much the volume of its stream. The Contoocook enters it at Fisherville, and a few miles farther on the Soucook and the Suncook contribute their waters from the East, and the Turkey river its from the West. At Goffstown it receives the Piscataquog, and at Merrimack the Souhegan. At Nashua it receives the stream of that name, and others still, as we descend, contribute to swell its volume, until at length, a magnificent stream, its wide waters mingle with the wider waters of the Atlantic, and are lost, even as the streams of our earthly lives will ere long be lost, in the boundless life to which we are hastening.

There are many points along the river's course where its descent is rapid and abrupt, affording important powers for manufacturing purposes. The falls at Campton, Bridgewater and Franklin on the Pemigewasset; and at Meredith, Sanbornton and Northfield on the Winnipisseogee, are considerable, and have been turned to profitable account. The most important, however, are on the Merrimack itself, which affords water powers scarcely surpassed by any in the country. The fall at Hookset is sixteen feet, that at Manchester fifty-four feet, that at Lowell thirty feet, and that at Lawrence twenty-six feet, while the aggregate fall, from the outlet of Winnipisseogee Lake to the ocean, is no less than 478 feet.*

The Valley of the Merrimack presents several features of much interest to the geologist. The valley is not the work of the river, as is oftentimes the case, but is of an anterior origin, and must have been formed, either by denudation or by an upheaval of the strata on either side of it by a force acting from beneath. Subsequently to its formation, it has been partially filled up by extensive deposits of yellow diluvial sand. These may be seen at different points throughout nearly its entire length, varying however very much in depth and extent. Where the valley is narrow and its sides steep, these deposits, necessarily conformable to their boundaries, are also narrow; but where it widens and its sides have a gradual ascent, they are often several miles in width. In this vicinity, for instance, this formation, varying in depth from ten to seventy feet, extends for many miles in length up and down the river, and laterally some fifteen miles Westerly to Warner, and from three to seven miles Easterly and North Easterly to Pembroke and Loudon.

Where sections of this diluvium have been exposed by the river it has generally been found to consist of a light yellowish sand, occasionally underlaid by deposits of blue clay, not unfrequently lying in thin strata, and alternating with courses of sand with equal thickness. At other times it rests upon a bluish formation resembling marl, possessed of little adhesive power, and which whenever exposed to water is easily dissolved and undermines the superincumbent sand. An instance of this may be seen at the base of the bluff opposite that part of our interval known as the Fan, where during a single season a tract of plain land three rods in width was undermined and precipitated into the river. The clay formation may be seen cropping out at various points not far distant, as on the south shore of Horse Shoe Pond, on the west bank of the river, at Farnum's eddy, and at several points near the centre of East Concord village.

Until within some fifteen or twenty years the extensive diluvial deposits known as the Plain, in Concord, was covered with a dense growth of hard pine, the "Pinus Rigida" of the botanists. This has been mostly removed and large portions of the plain are now devoted to tillage. As the traveller passes up and down the valley, he will observe this lying upon both sides of the river, divided by a gorge of varying width, the flat bottom of which constitutes our interval or meadows, as they are elsewhere more generally called. This has undoubtedly been excavated by the river, whose stream, originally of equal elevation with the plains, has been for ages wandering from side to side, across its whole extent, now in this direction and now in that, and all the while deepening its channel as it flowed, until at length reaching the rocky formation beneath, its descent has been arrested and fixed where it now remains. During this period it has staggered through numberless devious courses, many of which may be easily traced. They are generally curvilinear, the stream having encroached upon and washed away the bank on one side, while it receded from and made deposits upon the shore opposite. While this depression of the channel was progressing the new made land was at first left at a lower elevation than that upon the opposite side, so that the comparative height of a particular section of interval not unfrequently indicates the comparative age of its formation.*

Sometimes however these changes of the river's course are sudden and violent. The map of Concord, made in 1726, or thereabouts, shows two considerable tongues of land, lying beside and projecting by one another, but upon opposite sides of the river, which here pursued a devious course around and between them. In the course of time the distance in a direct line across the base of the first of these became reduced to about thirty rods, while the actual distance around it described by the river was no less than two hundred and thirty. Apparently wearied with this long circuit and preferring a shorter course, the river, during a freshet in 1824 made a direct breach, across the neck of this peninsular, and cut for itself a new channel in a single night, thereby transferring some thirty acres of land from its East to its West side. A few years later, the other projection was in like manner

* The sections of interval on the North and South sides of Wattanummons Brook illustrates this principle. Upon the latter the first settlers of Penacook found standing in 1727 the wigwams of the Indian sachem from whom this brook has derived its name, while very much of the former has been inside the limits of the river's channel within the memory of numerous persons now living.

cut off from the West and left upon the East side. The channels thus abandoned have been gradually filling up, and tons of hay are now annually cut where the river has flowed within a period of some thirty-five years.

The ordinary abrasions of the river's banks occur for the most part during the subsidence of freshets when the water in the channel is high and the current strong.* A fresh North-West wind usually follows a freshet and urges the subsiding waters with much force against the steep banks. The result is the undermining and precipitation of them into the stream, by which the earth composing them is carried down and deposited outside the current, upon the flats below. These, thus gradually elevated, in a few years, rise above the water at its low stages, and ere long are covered with the willow and the white maple, which serve to arrest still more, the floating sand in times of high water, while, after a few years lapse, they not unfrequently attain an elevation that renders them profitable for cultivation.

The rebound of the river to the opposite shore, and its subsequent deflection back again, causes the sweeping curves of its channel, with which we are all familiar. It is however, a noticeable fact, that the river always cuts upon a Southerly shore and recedes from a Northerly one. I think this will be found upon extended observation to be true as a general rule. The cause is readily traced to the Southerly course of the river's current, and the prevalence of the North-westerly winds which accompany the freshets.

We pass now to the settlement of the Valley by the English. The first permanent settlement by white persons was at Quascacunquen, or Newbury. The historian Hubbard says, "the plantation at Agawam, now Ipswich, Mass., became so filled with inhabitants that some of them presently swarmed out into another place, a little further Eastward." In consequence of the crowded state of this settlement, the Rev, Thomas Parker, with a small colony who had emigrated from Wiltshire, in England, the year before, left Agawam in the Spring of 1635, and passing by boats through

* Very rarely does a spring pass without the occurrence of one or more spring freshets. Sometimes as many as three high ones have been known in a single season. The maximum perpendicular rise of the river above low water, in this vicinity, has been about twenty feet. During the ordinary freshets it varies from five or six to twelve or fifteen feet.

Plum Island Sound, made a settlement at Newbury. In the division of the lands which was soon after made, the scripture principle, "to him that hath shall be given," was curiously applied, and each settler received, in proportion to his ability to live without it, from ten to ten hundred and eighty acres of land.

The settlement was a prosperous one, and in a few years became populous beyond the expectations of its proprietors. Soon more land was wanted and explorations were made of the country farther up the river, and as a result, the Rev. John Ward, with twelve others, mostly from Newbury, made a settlement in 1640, on the North side of the river at Pentucket, and laid the foundations of Haverhill. For about seventy years this was a frontier town, and none in the entire valley suffered so much from Indian barbarity as did this. The stories of the repeated atrocities perpetrated upon its exposed inhabitants are familiar to us all.

During the same year (1640,) Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, who had recently emigrated from Rowley, in England, with his people, commenced another settlement near by, upon the opposite side of the river, which was the origin of Bradford. The Indian title to the township was not extinguished until more than half a century afterwards, (1701,) when it was purchased of the three heirs of Maschonomontic for six pounds and ten shillings, as appears by their deed of conveyance, bearing their respective characteristic signatures of a bow and arrow, a new moon and a serpent.

Two years previous to this, a grant was made of a plantation, on the North side of the river, opposite Newbury, to Simon Bradstreet, Dan'l Denison, and others. It was incorporated the next year by the name of Colchester, which was changed in 1640, to that of Salisbury. Upon the union of New Hampshire with Massachusetts in 1643, it became the shire town of the new county of Norfolk, and continued such until 1679, when a separate royal government was established in New Hampshire.

A few years later, in 1643, a settlement, mostly English, was made at Andover. The town was incorporated three years afterwards, and the Indian title to the lands was extinguished by a purchase made by Rev. Mr. Woodbridge, of Catschamache, Sagamore of the Massachusetts Indians, for a coat and six pounds in money.

Ten years after this, a quaintly worded petition was presented to the General Court of Massachusetts, signed by thirty-nine persons, residents of Woburn and Concord, praying for a grant of land near Pawtucket Falls. This petition, which represents this locality "as a very comfortable place to accommodate a company of God's people upon," was granted; and in the course of eighteen months a settlement was commenced, a minister installed, and provision made for his support. This was the commencement of Chelmsford.

At some time previous to 1675, an important settlement was made at Dunstable by persons, in part at least, from Boston and vicinity. During King Philips' war, owing to the exposed condition of the township, all its citizens, with a single exception, retired to places of greater security in the lower towns. Col. John Tyng, however, who seems to have had little fear of the Indians, determined to remain upon the ground he considered rightfully his own, and defend it if he could. This purpose, which we are forced to admire, notwithstanding its rashness, he was enabled with the assistance of a few soldiers, sent him by the colony, to accomplish, so that this settlement was never wholly abandoned, even temporarily, as was the case with some others.

We pass on now some forty-five years to subsequent settlements, still farther up the river. About the time the Pilgrims emigrated to Plymouth, considerable numbers of Scotch Presbyterians, influenced by similar reasons, crossed the Irish Sea and planted themselves in the Northern part of Ireland, in the county of Ulster. We have not time to allude to the persecutions they suffered there. The siege of Derry is among the most memorable recorded in history. When a century had elapsed, a portion of their descendants, desiring a greater degree of freedom than was there accorded them, determined to seek new homes in New England. They arrived in Boston in 1718, and after careful inquiries and explorations had been made, a part of them with their pastor, the Rev. James McGregor, commenced a settlement at Londonderry. The enterprise was consecrated, on the very day of their arrival, by religious services under a large oak, on the Eastern shore of Beaver Pond.

It is to these Scotch Irish people, as they have been termed, that we owe the introduction of the potatoe to New England, and perhaps also the culture and manufacture of flax. Accessions were made from time to time to their number, and from this town several others, in the vicinity, received considerable numbers of their first settlers. This was particularly true of Bedford and Dunbarton.

Thus far Londonderry seems to have been the most Northern settlement upon the river. The boundary line of Massachusetts and New Hampshire was as yet unadjusted, and both colonies were quite willing at this time to make grants in this vicinity to actual settlers in their interest. When therefore, in 1725, a grant of territory at Penacook, to be actually settled by one hundred persons of substance and approved character, and their families, was sought of the General Court of Massachusetts, it was readily granted.

The settlement of Penacook was commenced in the course of two or three years, a church was organized, and a minister installed. It was incorporated by the General Court of Massachusetts in 1733, by the name of Rumford. This name was subsequently changed to that of Concord, when, in 1765, soon after the termination of the long controversy with the Proprietors of Bow, it was re-incorporated by the Legislature of New Hampshire.

We have thus briefly glanced at the principle settlements in the Merrimack Valley. Several others were made in the vicinity of Penacook at about this time. Pembroke, which had been granted in 1727 to the heirs and associates of the intrepid Lovewell, in consideration of gallant services against the Indians, began to be settled in 1729. In a year or two afterwards a settlement was commenced at Canterbury, and in 1734 a company of energetic and substantial men from Newbury laid the foundations of Contoocook, subsequently incorporated by the name of Boscawen; while some sixteen years later, another, composed principally of persons from Kingston, began to cut away the forest and prepare for themselves homes at Bakerstown, now Salisbury.

Several general facts arrest the attention of every one investigating the early settlement of this Valley. Allusion has already been made to its physical condition when our forefathers first entered it. An unbroken wilderness extended its entire length from the "Quascatunquen" to the "Winepesaukee," and if we except the diluvial plains immediately upon the river, it shaded a soil, much of it strong and fertile. The woods were alive with game, and the streams yielded fish in great abundance. Salmon is a luxury in which but few now indulge, yet tradition asserts that the time was, when laborers letting themselves to service not unfrequently stipulated that they should not be compelled to eat salmon, in the season of it, more than five days in a week.

The settlement of Massachusetts Bay was followed almost immediately by a large English immigration, and as the immigrants generally depended for a livelihood upon agriculture, the more desirable lands in the vicinity of Boston, Salem, Ipswich, and other towns near the coast, where the first comers had located, were soon occupied; others, from necessity, were sought farther inland. It is not surprizing therefore, that the Merrimack Valley, not very distant, and very inviting from its rich agricultural resources, should have early attracted their notice. Indeed, hardly seven years had elapsed, from the settlement of Boston, before the foundations of Newbury had been laid.

The early settlers were for the most part English and had been born and bred in the old country. They came to New England with their families, many of them, not merely to benefit their worldly condition, but seeking a wider religious toleration than they could hope for at home. Unconsciously indeed to themselves, they came, led on by Providence for the high purpose of assisting in founding a new State, and of inaugurating in a new world, new principles whose full developement and expansion the existing religious and political prejudices of the old, would not tolerate. A religious element is every where apparent in their movements. Wherever they went their religious teachers led them on, and provisions for the maintenance of religion were among the earliest made. Their clergymen were the best educated and most cultivated body of men among them, and their counsels were ever eagerly sought and freely given. Rev. Thomas Parker was one of the very first of the settlers on the ground, at Newbury. The same may be said of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, of Bradford; of Rev. John Ward, of Haverhill; of Rev. John Woodbridge, of Andover; of Rev. James McGregor, of Londonderry; of Rev. Timothy Walker, of Concord; of Rev. James Scales, of Canterbury, as well as of several others whose names we must now pass.

Indeed, very many of the old township grants contain express provisions making their privileges conditional upon the immediate settlement of a learned minister of approved principles. Nor did they forget the cause of education, and one proprietary share of all the lands of the township was frequently exclusively devoted to the support of Schools.

For nearly two hundred years from its settlement, the people of the Merrimack Valley had been almost exclusively devoted to agricultural pursuits. But another great industrial interest was destined ere long to claim their attention, and the great waterfalls of Andover, Pawtucket, Amoskeag, as well as others of less importance, were to be abandoned as fishing places and their vicinities made the sites of populous cities.

The various manufactured articles of domestic consumption, imported to a great extent from abroad, were excessively dear half a century ago, and many of them quite beyond the enjoyment of persons of moderate means. This was particularly the case with cotton and woolen cloths, articles of prime necessity in every household. Nor did the raising and spinning of wool and flax in limited quantities by the farmers of the country meet the universal want. The country needed and felt the need of home manufactures on an extended scale, and the general necessity soon devised means for its relief.

As early as 1793, a company erected and put in operation a proper and regularly constructed factory at the falls of the Parker River, at Byfield Parish, in Newbury, Mass. Its machinery was made at Newburyport, and among its first stockholders was the Hon. William Bartlett of that place. It was originally designed for the manufacture of woolen cloths, but was subsequently changed to a cotton mill. This is asserted to have been the first American Factory, although an adverse claim has been made in favor of another alleged to have been started in Rhode Island some three years previous. A few years later, in 1816, Francis C. Lowell, Patrick T. Jackson, and Kirk Boot, aided by the eminent machinest, Paul Moody, availing themselves of the important improvements of Hargreaves and Arkwright, erected a cotton mill at Waltham, and for the first time in the United States put in operation the power loom.

The success of this enterprise determined its originators to continue it upon a more extended scale. In looking around for a water power sufficient and constant, Pawtucket Falls was selected, and four hundred acres of land in its vicinity having been purchased in 1821, a mill was erected the following year. This was the commencement of Lowell. Its population numbered 200 in 1820; in 1844 it was 25,163, and in 1853 it had risen to 37.000.

Within the limits we have assigned to the Merrimack Valley, another enterprise of a similar character was started a few years afterwards at Dunstable, of which the city of Nashua is the result.

These manufactures proved profitable to their stockholders and the further extension of them was deemed advisable. Amoskeag Falls, one of the finest water powers upon the river, where it makes a sudden descent of 47 feet, was next sought as the nucleus of a new city. Samuel Blodgett, with a courage and perseverance worthy of a more important success than ever resulted to him, had built a canal around these falls as early as 1816, at an expense of $60.000, and some twenty-five years afterwards the foundations of Manchester were laid. Upon these has since been reared the most populous city of New Hampshire.

But we must forbear farther allusions to the developements of this great interest at Newburyport, Lawrence, and other places of minor importance.

Several important results have followed the establishment and growth of the manufacturing interest in our Valley:—

The enterprise of its patrons has been rewarded by remunerative returns from their investments.

A ready market near at hand has been secured to the farmers resident in the vicinity of manufacturing towns for all the surplus products of their lands.

A very material reduction in the price of many important articles of domestic consumption has followed. As early as 1839 cotton cloth had fallen in price to about one third of what it was in 1816.

A new impulse has been given to the increase of the population of the Valley. The Census Reports for the last half century show this most conclusively. Its entire population from the forks of the river at Franklin, to its outlet at the ocean, was but 50,150 in 1810, and during the next ten years it increased but 3,028. In the following ten years, (from 1820 to 1830) there was an increase of about one thousand per year, the population in 1830 being only 63,169. But during the period intervening between 1830 and 1840, we find the increase to have been more than twice as great, amounting at the latter date to 86,188 — some six thousand more than the entire population of the State of New Hampshire at the commencement of the Revolution. And if we look still farther we shall find that the ten years preceding the close of the first half of this century show the still greater increase of thirty-six and a half thousand (36,521.) The great cause of this accelerated increase of population is doubtless principally due to the growth of the manufacturing interest; for the same authorities also show that while in 1820 the number of persons engaged in agriculture were about twice and a half the number of those engaged in manufactures, (6,958 and 2,808) in 1840 the number of the latter was nearly double that of the former, (18,444 and 11,213) while the population of Lawrence and Lowell alone in 1845 numbered nearly twenty-two thousand, (21,868) exceeding probably the whole number of farmers in the entire Valley.

The magnitude of our manufacturing interest is not generally appreciated, and a careful study of its authenticated returns will astonish persons not familiar with it. Look for a moment at a single branch of it. The whole amount of capital invested in the manufacture of cotton throughout the United States in 1850, was $74,500,931, more than one half of which was in New Hampshire and Massachusetts; while of the sixty-two millions dollars worth of manufactured products, these two States furnished twenty-eight and a half millions, a very considerable proportion of which came from the Valley of the Merrimack.

The rapidity with which this great interest has advanced is indicated as plainly perhaps, as in any other way, by the growth of the city of Lowell. Commencing with a population of 200 in 1820 it increased to 3,532 in 1828; to 6,467 in 1830; to 10,254 in 1832; to 12,993 in 1833; to 18,010 in 1837; to 20,981 in 1840; to 25,163 in 1844; to 33,383 in 1850; to 37,000 in 1853.

But our Valley boasts a nobler product than any of the soil or loom,—a product of industrious, intelligent and high souled men, and whenever called upon by the State, the country, or the world, of these it has ever made liberal contribution. In most of the great enterprises and actions that are the subjects of our American annals it has been represented, and oftentimes most ably.

It was the design of the speaker to present to you, on this occasion, the names of some of the natives and residents of this Valley who stand prominent in our general and local histories, for in all the various walks of life there have been many who have attained to eminent positions. There have been pious and learned clergymen; wise and patriotic statesmen; able advocates and lawyers; skillful and devoted physicians, surrounded by an agricultural and manufacturing population noted for its intelligence, its virtue and its industry; but the length of the roll and the delicacy of the task compels the relinquishment of the purpose. Gladly would we tarry to refresh your knowledge of such men as Parker, Barnard, Rogers, Woodbury, Walker, McGregor and Woods, devoted ministers whose piety, good sense and sound learning have done so much to mould the characters of their own and subsequent generations upon the shores of this river; to call to your mind such names as those of Parsons, Thornton, the Websters, the Bells, and others, men who have done honor to themselves and to us as patriots, lawyers or statesmen in many a critical period of our country's history, and by no means forgetting Lovewell, and Stark, and Goffe, and Rogers, to whose valor we owe so much. But our time is well nigh spent. Yet we cannot forget, in passing, to do respectful homage to America's greatest statesman — for Webster was a native of this Valley. Here he received no small portion of the early training which was to prepare him for the great achievements of his after life. And with honest pride we may remember that while his tomb is elsewhere his birthplace will ever remain with us.

Strolling thus through the Valley, this summer's afternoon, recalling its history and viewing its condition, the question arises, what attracts to this locality the busy population here centered in towns and there scattered over the intervening country? And if, when it is responded, that the attraction may be found in the rich intervals, now verdant with promises of golden harvests, and in the waterfalls that turn the ponderous wheels of our great mills, we feel only half satisfied, and childlike ask again, but whence the waterfalls and the intervals? nature answers, that to the Merrimack we owe them both — the Merrimack upon whose banks we have stood a thousand times, but of whose industry and mighty excavations in ages past we have scarcely thought. But if, still unsatisfied, we would seek its origin and "the farthest head thereof," we must go beyond "Aquedahtan," beyond the little streams hastening downward from the sides of the mountains, beyond the vapors that condense upon their summits; upward and farther upward, to the bosom of Him from whom all streams of blessing flow and whose presence is veiled in majesty impenetrable.

REPORT

On the alterations in the Channel of Merrimack River. Read before the New Hampshire Historical Society at its Annual Meeting, in June, 1853.

In compliance with a vote of this Society, passed at its annual meeting in June, 1852, by which the undersigned was requested to examine and report what changes or alterations have taken place in the bed or channel of the Merrimack River, the following Report is submitted as the result of his investigations upon that subject.

The changes in the channel of the Merrimack have been effected by two different and distinct causes; one of which may be termed natural, the other artificial. The former is caused by the operation of water alone, while the latter is effected by the genius of man, aided more or less by the operation of water. Most of the changes of the latter description have been produced by the operations of the Northern Railroad Company.

This road, which extends from Concord to the Connecticut River at Lebanon, is constructed as far as Franklin, a distance of eighteen miles, on the west bank of Merrimack River. On thus locating the road, the company found formidable obstructions to the progress of their enterprise at three several points, to wit: at Farnum's eddy, at a point opposite Sewall's Island, and at Goodwin's point, all of which are in Concord.

The first of these obstructions, (at Farnum's eddy,) occurs about two miles northerly from the commencement of the road at the Concord station. A little above this place the river made a sudden curve and ran in a S. W. direction, throwing the water with great force against a high bluff of clay and gravel, which forced the river again in a southerly direction, and formed its western bank. The river had made such encroachments upon this bluff that it had become precipitous, and no place existed on which a foundation for the road could be constructed. To avoid this difficulty and to supply the deficiency, the company resorted to the expedient of filling up and rubbling with stones the western side of the river's channel at this point, which was successfully effected, though at considerable expense, the river being very deep.

This operation caused the water to be thrown upon the eastern or opposite shore with such force as to carry away a large quantity of the land, and make heavy encroachments upon the owners of the soil on that side of the river, to the extent of at least twelve rods wide, and forty or fifty rods in the direction of the channel.

The next impediment, opposite Sewall's Island, is some two miles above the former. That branch of the river which flowed on the west side of the island was much the largest of the two, and passed directly at the foot of a high and steep bank, rendering it impracticable to construct the road at that place. To obviate that difficulty a dam was constructed across the western branch of the river at its bifurcation at the north end of the island, by which process all the water of the river was made to flow through the narrow eastern channel. This caused extensive inroads to be made upon the proprietors of land on the eastern side of the river, who suffered largely by the depredation committed by the water. More than two hundred rods in length, and from twenty to twenty-five rods in width, were swept away. The river having been made to flow through the eastern channel, an unobstructed way was opened for the construction of the railroad directly over Sewall's Island.

Upon arriving at the head of Sewall's falls, some five or six miles from the commencement of the road, at a place called Goodwin's Point, an obstruction still more formidable presented itself. Goodwin's Point is a peninsula or long tongue of land made by a sudden bend in the river from a southerly to a westerly direction, running for the distance of more than two hundred rods, to a high and precipitous bluff upon which the river was making annual encroachments. This obstruction caused the river to make a short and sudden sweep to the south and S. E., returning, after flowing four to five hundred rods to a point south, and within one hundred rods of the place of its departure from its accustomed southerly course, forming a curve in the form of an ox-bow. In consequence of this obstruction it became impracticable to construct the railroad on the western side of the river at this point. It became necessary, therefore, either to build and maintain two expensive bridges within the space of one hundred rods, or to cut a new channel for the river across the base of the peninsula, and cause the water to flow in that direction, and thus permit the railroad to be built across the peninsula and on the west side of the river. The company chose the latter expedient, and the Merrimack now flows but about one hundred rods to reach a point, which, before the alteration it traversed four hundred to five hundred rods.

The excavation for this new channel, across the base of Goodwin's Point, was commenced in the fall of 1845. While prosecuting the work in the spring of 1846, the workmen, at the depth of about 12 feet, struck upon a bed or stratum of vegetable matter, consisting of leaves, branches and trunks of small trees, the latter from three to six inches in diameter; the form of which was perfect, and the bark distinct. The texture was decayed and tender, offering but little resistance to edge tools, and was easily separated and picked to pieces by the fingers.

This vegetable deposit was found imbedded in a stratum of fine blue sand, which at first sight was mistaken for blue clay, and was from one to three inches in thickness. The leaves and other small materials of the deposit were so disorganized and delicate, that their botanical character could not be established with the means at hand. But the trunks and large branches were recognized as belonging to the natural order coniferæ, and ranked under what are denominated evergreens.

From the above facts it is evident that at some remote period unknown to the present race, the place where these vegetable remains were deposited formed the bed or channel of the Merrimack; that it gradually receded from the East as it succeeded in wearing away the bluff on the West, and depositing the alluvium thus made toward the point from which it receded. Thus by an operation constantly and silently going on, a large tract of valuable and productive alluvial land, here called interval, was, in process of time deposited and formed.

The foregoing embrace all the essential alterations that have been artificially made in the channel of the Merrimack.

Another instance of an ancient bed of the river has, however, recently been discovered. In the Autumn of 1852, while excavating for the gasometer at the south end of the principal village of Concord, preparatory to the erection of the gas-works, the workmen, at the depth of ten feet below the surface, struck upon a deposit of vegetable matter, consisting of fragments of the roots, trunks and branches of trees. They were found deposited in a stratum of ferruginous sand, (composed of sand and oxide of iron) and in some instances the fragments of roots and branches of trees were completely incased in a firm coating or crust of the oxide of iron and sand from one eighth to one half an inch in thickness. Immediately above the vegetable deposit was a stratum of black magnetic-iron sand, such as is used for desiccating ink on paper to prevent blotting. It would average an inch in thickness. Next above the stratum of iron-sand rested a deposit of blue clay. Above the clay were alternate but regular strata of fine and coarse sand, fine and coarse gravel and pebbles of various and unequal thickness; all showing indubitable marks of having been deposited by the agency of water. This deposit was found at an elevation many feet above where the waters of the Merrimack ever reach in modern times, even at its highest overflow.

My attention was first called to this interesting deposit through the kindness of the Hon. Matthew Harvey, and with him immediately visited the locality and made all needful examination, and collected a good supply of specimens for future use.

The natural causes of changes in the channel of the Merrimack will next engage our attention.

Wherever there are bottom or interval lands bordering the Merrimack, we find changes in its channel almost constantly taking place. But little of such land exists on the Merrimack, either above Boscawen, or below Concord. Between the towns of Franklin and Northfield, however, there is a small tract of interval, but not of sufficient magnitude to admit of any considerable change in the channel of the river. Between the towns of Boscawen and Canterbury, these bottom lands become much more extensive, through which the river, in its meanderings, is constantly, though for the most of the time slowly, wearing away its banks at sundry points, filling in on the opposite side, and thereby changing the channel of the stream.

But by far the most extensive expansion of interval lands lies within the town of Concord, and it is here that the most extensive changes in the channel of the Merrimack have taken place; and here also has been the principal theatre of our examinations. But little doubt can exist in the mind of any one who has bestowed his thoughts upon the subject, that the whole expanse of the wide and extensive interval lands lying within this town, has been traversed by the Merrimack. Wherever excavations have been made, indubitable marks of the ancient bed of the river, and depositions caused by the action of water are met with. It is generally conceded, and in fact I think it hardly admits of a doubt, that the present bed of the Lagoon called Horse-shoe Pond, at some period, perhaps not very remote, formed the channel of the Merrimack.

Wherever abrasions or wearing away of the bank on one side of the river takes place, there is a corresponding filling in on the opposite, and these operations are constantly going on at the curves and bends of the stream. The greatest and most signal changes are produced, however, by the resistless power of water during the great overflows or high floods, when great encroachments, and sometimes extensive ravages are committed, causing a great loss of property, but occasionally enriching one man at the expense of his more unfortunate neighbor. The water, being thrown against the bank on one side of the river, is, by the resisting force there met with, reflectingly forced in the direction of the opposite bank, although at some distance below, and in its turn wearing that away also. By this process the channel of the river grows more and more crooked and tortuous, and in process of time great changes and even revolutions in the channel of the river are effected.

Beginning at the north, the first considerable inroads made by the action of the water we have met with, beside those already named, at Goodwin's Point and at Sewall's Island, occurs on the east side of the river below Sewall's Island, carrying away the land of the Messrs. Locke and others to the amount of twenty-five rods in width by two hundred in length. Passing by Farnum's Eddy, already described, we next arrive at the angle of the river above the old site of the Federal Bridge, where the river takes a sudden turn from a southerly to an easterly direction.

Here the water has made considerable encroachment upon the south side, and carried off much of the land opposite the Squaw-lot, so-called, but the owners of the land there have rubbled the bank, hoping to check further depredation. Previous to this however, the water had carried off a tract of interval twenty-five rods in its greatest width, by one hundred and twenty-five rods in length. At the Federal Bridge, as now located, which is some forty rods east of its former location, the river turns again southerly, or rather south-easterly; consequently the water, by impinging upon the eastern bank has carried off a large quantity of the land, so that within the memory of the present inhabitants at the East village, the rocks, now to be seen on the west side of the river, (and considerable inland too,) below Federal Bridge, formerly served as resting places on which the people were wont to sit and fish on the eastern side. By the resistance here met with the water rebounds and is forced diagonally across the bed of the stream to the west side striking with such force against that part of the interval called the Fan, as to make great and rapid inroads upon land owned by Abiel Walker, to the amount of eighty rods in length by thirty-five to forty in width, so that rocks, now to be seen far to the north, on land of Jonathan Eastman, Esq., were on the south bank of the river within fifty years. This operation produced a sudden bend in the river to the north east, directly against a high sandy bluff called Sugar-ball. Here the river turns upon itself at an acute angle, being forced south, which course it pursued some sixty rods. And here we arrive at the greatest and most important changes that have taken place in the channel of the Merrimack. From the point last arrived at, the river ran in a south-west direction, to Fort Eddy, a distance of one hundred and twenty-five rods, where meeting with a higher elevation of land it was forced south and east and soon to the north-east, which course it pursued two hundred and fifty rods to Kimball's Ferry, at the foot of the eastern bluff, a little south of Sugar-ball. At this point the river was again forced in a south-west direction, and after pursuing that course for one hundred and twenty-five rods, it arrived at the place where it was intersected by the present channel as the river now runs.

By these two sudden bends in the channel, two long ox-bow like curves were formed by the river inclosing two narrow tongues of land or peninsulas, formerly from forty to eighty rods in width by one hundred and twenty-five rods in length. That included within the Northern ox-bow was known as Sugar-ball Point, and that within the southern as Hale's Point. Over the latter, (Hale's Point,) passed the road from Main street, at Herbert's, to Kimball's Ferry. In order to a correct understanding of the situation and extent of these peninsulas it is important to consult maps of the river, made at different periods. By the map of 1746, we learn that at that time Hale's Point was much wider than Sugar-ball Point; while by that of 1804, we learn that at that date the contrary was true. The width of each was more uniform in 1746 than in 1804, when each had become narrowed at the place of union with the main land, forming a sort of neck. This neck continued to grow narrower by the action of the water from above, until the great freshet of 1826, when a large mass of the eastern portion of Sugar-ball point was swept away, and in the great overflow of 1828, a breach was made quite across the peninsula, forming an island on the west, now owned by Richard Bradley, Esq. The river, by flowing through this new channel spent its full force upon the northern shore of Hale's Point, rapidly wearing it away, so that as early as January, 1831, during a great winter freshet, the water completed a channel for the river entirely across that also, cutting the road to Kimball's Ferry, which it left one hundred and twenty-five rods to the east, while the river, intersecting the accustomed channel on the south, pursued its way toward the place of its destination.

In performing a journey around these curves the water of the river flowed over a space of some four hundred and sixty rods, to reach a point at which it now arrives in flowing one hundred and fifty rods, or one-third of the original distance.

From this last cut off, at Hale's Point, the river pursues a south west course to a little above Free Bridge, so called, where it sweeps round to the S. E. making extensive encroachment upon the west bank, both above and below the bridge, to the extent since 1804, of twenty-five rods in width. But further encroachment upon the land of Joseph P. Stickney, above the bridge, has been recently arrested by rubbling the west bank. From a little below the bridge the river pursues a south-east course for about two hundred rods to a high bluff, called Davis' bluff. At the top of this bluff a Mr. Davis had a patch of about two acres of land on which was a house, out-buildings, orchard, &c. To the south-east of the Davis place, and still farther from the river, was situated the Branch Turnpike, so called. Against this bluff the water rushes with considerable force, constantly wearing it away, more especially for the last ten years, within which time the whole of the Davis place has been carried off, and the excavation has approached to within a few feet of the turnpike. Meeting with this resistance, the river is again forced to the south-west, to a little above the lower or Concord Bridge, one hundred rods distant, where it again sweeps to the south-east. At this turn as at all others, the water has worn away the bank against which it impinges above the bridge, until it approached and even encroached upon the main travel road to the bridge, and was only prevented from washing that away by rubbling the bank of the river at that place.

The foregoing embrace all the alterations and changes worthy of note that have been effected or taken place in the channel of the Merrimack for the last fifty years.

It may be well here to remark again that wherever there has been a wearing away of one bank of the river there has been a corresponding filling in on the opposite, so that in the main, the width of the river is not materially changed.

Much credit and many thanks are due to Jonathan Eastman, Esq., of Concord, a practical Surveyor, for the loan of a copy of the map of Concord of 1804,* for the purpose of comparison, and for his assistance in ascertaining the location and extent of the several changes in the channel of the Merrimack.

Also, to Richard Bradley, Joseph P. Stickney and Lyman A. Walker, Esquires, of Concord, for pointing out by actual examination on the spot, many of the important changes which have taken place in the channel of the river.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM PRESCOTT.

APPENDIX

To the Report on the alterations in the channel of Merrimack River.

Ten years having elapsed since the report to which this is an appendix was made, and many important changes in the channel of the river having taken place within that period, it seems important and very desirable that a record of such changes should be made and thus bring the report down to the present time.

Beginning at the north and proceeding south, the first important change in the bed of the river occurs on its eastern shore opposite Sewall's Island, and extending for a considerable distance below. Here the water has washed away the valuable land belonging to the Messrs. Locke and others for a distance of more than two hundred rods in length, and from five to eight rods in width.

The river has made considerable inroads also, opposite and below Farnum's Eddy. By rubbling the south bank, opposite the Squaw lot, the encroachment at that point has been checked. But on land of Jonathan Eastman, Esq., below Federal Bridge, the water is annually making large encroachment. From this point the water is thrown with great force upon the north side of the Fan, so called, where it is rapidly washing away the land of Lyman A. Walker, (formerly Abiel Walker's) having carried off no less than three acres in the spring of 1862.

The excavation made at this point has increased the bend in the river by which the current is being thrown still further toward the north striking with great force against Sugar-ball bluff, a sand bank, from seventy-five to one hundred feet in height. Of this mass, the water has carried off within the last ten years, no less than forty rods wide by eighty long, with a corresponding filling in of the opposite side, so that the channel of the river at this point, (the Sugar-ball) is forty rods further to the east than it was in 1853.

For the first time within the memory of our oldest citizens, the river has made, within a few years, large encroachments upon its south-eastern bank and above the Free Bridge, where in the spring of 1862, the flood carried off a large margin of land for Joseph P. Stickney, together with a barn standing thereon, and another barn was only saved from the same fate by removing it further inland.

These successive floods have continued their devastations also, at Davis' Bluff, and carried off Branch Turnpike, beside several rods farther inland. A new road that had been made around the bluff as a substitute, united with the turnpike again at the house of Mr. Wyatt, which was supposed at the time to be out of further danger. The freshet of 1863 cut that off and and approached to within a few feet of Mr. W.'s house, rendering it necessary to remove the same before another year. The encroachment at that place was so rapid that a margin of three rods wide was carried away in as many days.

During the great flood in the spring of 1862, the water for almost or quite the first time, committed considerable damage below the lower or Concord Bridge, where on the east side, it has excavated large and deep holes, washed and gullyed the Pembroke road, carried off a small bridge, &c. Another such overflow will be likely to be attended with still greater disaster.

It is supposed by many that the increase of damage upon the Fan, Sugar-ball, and Stickney's land, is caused by the construction of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad across the intervale from the R. R. station to Federal Bridge. Doubtless much of the surplus water which, during an overflow, spread out over the interval, and passed off gently into the river below, is now forced to seek an outlet in the vicinity of Federal Bridge, causing a greater accumulation of water at that point, which, rushing down against the northern side of the Fan, to be in its turn thrown also against Sugar-ball and Mr. Stickney's land, very materially increased the destruction of the land at those places.
